Wage And Price Freeze Gives Way To Phase Two

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wage and price freeze ends tonight, to be replaced by flexible guidelines that President Nixon says he hopes will cut inflation in half.

Official regulations were published in today's Federal Register, legally thawing the freeze.

But not before some last-minute exceptions were made late Friday by the President's Cost of Living Council:

—Life insurance premiums will be allowed to rise after today without federal controls, though not other types of insurance rates.

—Servicemen will get their scheduled 15-per-cent average pay raise Sunday, despite the general 5.5-per-cent guide for the rest of the economy.

—Other federal workers and persons earning less than the $1.60 hourly minimum wage also will be exempted from wage controls. However, the President already has postponed most federal pay raises.

—The auto industry may pay scheduled wage increases this month and next, and get price rises to match, without the advance approval otherwise required of wage agreements and businesses of that size.

The increases are subject to rollbacks if found to be excessive. Actually, the same exception will apply until Jan. 1 to all the biggest 500 wage agreements and the businesses they affect, but besides the United Auto Workers contract only a handful of smaller agreements call for any increases before then.

Ford, Chrysler and American Motors said even before the exemption was announced Friday that they would seek higher prices.

The Price Commission today detailed the procedure for wholesalers and retailers with more than $100 million in annual revenue to notify the commission of planned price increases.

A Price Commission form, PC-1R, will provide the request for an increase and this must be accompanied by a certificate that the percentages spelled out in the form will not be exceeded.

When the form and certificate are filed, the commission said, a retailer or wholesaler "may adjust his prices by applying those mark-ups to the cost of his merchandise. He may not use mark-up percentages that are higher than those in effect during his base period as defined in the regulations."

President Nixon conceded at a news conference that pent-up price increases might create a temporary "bulge" in the cost of living when freeze rules are eased. But he called the rulings of his Pay Board and Price Commission "very sound."

He said some businessmen would have preferred a lower wage guide of perhaps 3 or 4 per cent, but he said: "It would have been totally unrealistic. It would have broken the board wide open."

On prices, he said, "The guidelines that have been laid down would cut the rate of inflation approximately in half. That is real progress."

The general rule for prices is that they may go up to match rising costs, with a deduction or even a rollback for any increase in productivity.

Withdrawal Hike Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered a more-than-50-per-cent speedup in withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam, but says he may have to intensify bombing of Communist infiltration routes through Laos.

Nixon called newsmen to his office late Friday and announced that 45,000 more American servicemen will be pulled out in December and January.

This will drop the American troop presence in Vietnam to about 139,000, lowest in nearly 6½ years and more than 404,000 below the war peak.

Nixon linked the speedup to better-than-expected Vietnamese progress toward defending themselves. The South Vietnamese government said it was because of "the improved general security situation now prevailing in Vietnam."

A total of 25,000 men will be brought home in December— "to get a few more men out before Christmas," the President said—and another 20,000 in January.

This will boost the withdrawal rate to 22,500 a month from the 14,300-a-month average in effect since last spring.

Although Nixon had been expected to raise the pullout tempo, his decision to limit the next period to two months came as a surprise. Previous announcements have projected withdrawals as far as a year ahead.

Nixon said: "It is essential as we get closer to the end, if we are going to maintain any negotiating leverage, that the withdrawal periods ... be somewhat shorter."

This approach would enable Nixon to make a series of troop-withdrawal pronouncements during 1972, a presidential-election year.

On other matters, Ni bn told the news conference:

—The United States will continue to provide aid to Cambodia but no American troops will be committed.

—It is highly improbable that U.S.-Soviet negotiators will reach agreement on strategic arms limitations this year. But an agreement eventually will be reached, he said.

—He thinks the rate of inflation will be chopped in half next year. He praised his Pay Board and Price Commission for "very sound" decisions in setting guidelines for Phase 2 of his economic program.

—It would not be helpful to disclose the exact dates of his visits to Peking and Moscow or what will be discussed.

Nixon promised a further troop-withdrawal announcement before Feb. 1, saying the number to be withdrawn and the duration of that pullout period will be determined by these three factors:

"First, by the level of enemy activity ... because if the level of enemy activity and infiltration substantially increases, it could be very dangerous to our sharply decreased forces in South Vietnam.

"Second, the progress of our training program, our Vietnamization program in South Vietnam and third, any progress that may have been made with regard to two major objectives we have, obtaining the release of all our POWs wherever they are in Southeast Asia and obtaining a cease-fire for all of Southeast Asia."

While restating that the ground combat role for U.S. troops is over, Nixon disappointed those who had hoped he would publicly declare a date for ending all U.S. combat operations, including air strikes, and for withdrawing all remaining troops.

The President asserted that the United States will continue to use its air power "in suppo t of the South Vietnamese until there is a negotiated settlement or, looking further down the road, until the South Vietnamese have developed the capability to handle the situation themselves."

While the United States has been pulling fighter bombers out of Vietnam, it maintains strong air units, including B52 bombers, in Thailand. This air power is thrown against the enemy's Ho Chi Minh supply trail running from North Vietnam through the Laotian panhandle.

"As we reduce the number of our forces, it is particularly important for us to continue our air strikes on the infiltration routes," Nixon said.

The infiltration rate is up somewhat but "it is not as high now ... as it was last year" at this time, Nixon said.

Senate Rejects Year Delay For Hike In Social Security Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected today 41-25 an attempt to delay for a year a $3-billion increase in Social Security taxes scheduled to take effect in 1972.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, DMinn., author of the amendment to the tax cut bill, said the Social Security increase will offset much of the tax reductions in the bill and thus nullify the economic stimulus desired.

For example, he said, a family of four with a $10,000 income would get an $80 tax cut from the bill but pay $62 more in Social Security taxes."

But Sen. Russell B. Long, DLa., chairman of the Finance Committee and floor manager for the bill, urged the Senate not to tamper with the Social Security system in the tax bill. He moved successfully to table and thus kill the amendment.

The Social Security tax rate, now 5. per cent each on the employer and employe, does not change in 1972 under present law.

But the wage base on which the tax is paid would be increased from $7,800 to $9,000. This will mean a tax boost of $62.40 in 1972 for all persons earning $9,000 or more.

During Friday's first day of floor debate on the $15.5-billion tax cut bill, the Senate handed the administration a series of defeats, chiefly by voting increased relief for individuals.

It adopted by a 40-37 margin an $800 personal income tax exemption effective next year in place of the $750 supported by the administration. The Senate planned to continue consideration of the bill today.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, RUtah, administration spokesman in the debate, said he figured the Senate added $2.9 billion to the cost of the measure in the one day, "and I suppose there is more to come."

Kirk Arrested On Weapons Charge

CAIRO — William Timothy Kirk, 25, of Sikeston was arrested last night on charges of unlawful use of weapons, resisting arrest, and failure to have a gun owners identification card.

The charges against Kirk, who is also charged with murder in Scott county, armed robbery in Butler county, and selling a stolen vehicle in Memphis, stemmed from an incident reported to police at 8:35 p.m. last night.

Police said they received a call from an unidentified person last night that a man had fired a pistol on the 200 block of 12th street.

When police arrived they found Kirk and a companion, 33-year-old Wanda Sue Garner, also of Sikeston, sitting in an automobile adjacent to a vending machine warehouse on 12th Street. The warehouse was reported to be owned by Vincent "Red" Doss, a well-known Cairo man.

The two were ordered from their car and police found a .22 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol under the driver's seat.

The woman was charged with disorderly conduct but Cairo police refused to comment on what led to the resisting charge on Kirk and the disorderly conduct charge of the woman.

Kirk and the woman are residents of the Rail Haven Motel on East Malone in Sikeston.

Kirk is charged with the July killing of James Allen Roose of Sikeston. Roose's body was found on the Ables Road, south of Miner. He had been shot four imes in the face. Roose also lived at the Rail Haven Motel.

In September, Kirk was charged in Memphis with attempting to sell a stolen vehicle there. The car, stolen from Kentucky, was reported to have been driven to Memphis by Kirk.

He is also charged with the armed robbery of a Poplar Bluff jeweler at his home in October. Kirk and a companion were accused of holding the jeweler and his wife at gunpoint, tying them, and stealing merchandise valued at more than $10,000.

Missouri Delta Community Hospital authorities alerted police last week when Kirk arrived at the hospital suffering from a gunshot wound in the leg and a stab wound in the abdomen.

Kirk refused to explain the wounds to hospital authorities and refused admittance to the hospital. He was questioned by police but would not disclose how he had been wounded.

He is free on bond on each of the charges pending against him.

Three Die In Road Mishaps

Two Chaffee residents were killed Friday night in a two-car collision in Chaffee. A single car mishap three miles south of Poplar Bluff resulted in the death of a Poplar Bluff boy.

The fatalities:

Leon Gluek, 50, Ruby McCarty, 45, both of Chaffee; and Larry W. Casey, 15, of Poplar Bluff.

In Chaffee at the junction of highway 77 and route EE at 11 p.m., a 1966 Chevrolet traveling east, driven by Glueck, did not stop at a stop sign, the highway patrol said, and ran into a northbound 1964 Oldsmobile driven by Edward Freeland, 16, of Sikeston.

Freeland sustained a fractured leg and possible chest injuries. William Young, 23, of Oran, a passenger in the Freeland car, suffered internal injuries and a fractured right arm and leg. Another passenger in the Oldsmobile, Lonnie Cook, 20, of Oran, had a fractured leg and face cuts.

The injured were taken to St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau.

The single fatality occurred on highway 42 near Poplar Bluff at 11:30 p.m. when a 1970 Mustang going south, driven by Edward Howard, 19, of Poplar Bluff, was going at excessive speed, the patrol said, ran off the road and overturned.

The driver sustained head and back injuries and was taken to Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The Chaffee residents were taken to Bisplinghoff Funeral Home in Chaffee. The Poplar Bluff boy was taken to Bruce Fitch funeral home in Poplar Bluff.

Search For Plane First CAP Drill

The Sikeston cadet squadron and senior civil air patrol unit began a two-day statewide defense exercise this morning.

Sikeston is serving as one of six statewide bases for the exercises. Other bases are Kirksville, St. Joseph, Joplin, Sedalia and Creve Coweu.

The unit received an alert at 11 a.m. that a B52 airplane was missing. The plane's last known contact was one mile south of Malden and it was headed to northwest Missouri to participate in a refueling operation.

Four planes from the Sikeston base were dispatched to search for the missing airliner. Forty-five members of the civil air patrol from as far north as St. Louis participated in this morning's exercise.

Air patrol spokesman C. F. Cline said the four search planes from Sikeston will search while the communications center, at the Sikeston airport, coordinates the mission.

Ground crews are on stand-by awaiting word from the search planes.

Each of the other bases throughout the state is being tested for a different type of emergency including nuclear accidents, flood and tornado drills.

The Sikeston base covers the area from Malden to Rolla.

Superintendent Mum On School Secrecy

DEXTER (AP) -- School Supt. T. S. Hill declined comment Friday on a comment by an assistant state attorney general apparently opening the way for reporters from the Sikeston Daily Standard to attend public meetings of the Dexter School Board.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Brook Bartlett, Commenting at the request of the newspaper, said he knew of no statute under which representatives of newspapers outside school districts could be barred from attending school board public meetings.

"As far as I know," Bartlett said "You are plowing new ground. It is good practice for school boards to hold all meetings in public and have everything above board." Hill, who has been Dexter superintendent 34 years, was quoted by the Daily Standard as having said last May that attendance at school board meetings by reporters of out of town newspapers violated school board policy.

Not allowed to attend the May meeting was Brenda MacDonald, Daily Standard correspondent who lived here. The vice president of the Daily Standard, Allen Blanton, said the newspaper plans to have a reporter at the board's Dec. 3 meeting.

Sikeston and Dexter are about 20 miles apart in Southeast Missouri.

CHINESE PUZZLE —
SIMPLE SOLUTION

Ping-pong, a recent athletic flash on the already flushed diplomatic scene, has been surpassed suddenly by frantic flashing of Chinese numbers game addicts. Any number can play, and indeed many do. It is rather like Alice's famous causus race: no rules; everybody does his own thing.

For example, who knows how many people live on the Chinese mainland? Figures that pop up from time to time range from 450-million to over 80-million. Even allowing for the vagaries of Red Guard head-counters, that's a difference of almost twice the population of the United States.

Then we come to the oft-mouthed line that there are 2-million "mainlanders" ruling 12-million "Taiwanians" (as one U.S. Senator so quaintly puts it). Now where all these "Taiwanians" sprung from if it was not from China is neatly ignored.

Ambassador James C. H. Shene, speaking recently before the National Press Club, pointed out the only native Taiwanese are the island's two hundred thousand aborigines, all the rest are Chinese. But the two million- twelve million games goes on, creating a false impression and phoney issue.

There are some numbers that tend to get ignored in the fast scoring. Like the 24 refugees who stumbled ashore on a single day recently after braving a five-mile swim across Deep Bay in Hong-Kong harbor. Or the fact that through June of this year almost 10,000 refugees poured out from behind the bamboo curtain -- that's doubling the rate of last year even after all the ping-pong smiles.

Even Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai got in the game the other day, offering a New York Times editorial writer the solution to our income-tax problems, Red Chinese style. Chou pities the plight of the poor Chinese who live on Taiwan and have to pay income tax. He says all would be rosy if Taiwan will just come back to Uncle Mao and Uncle Chou. They could be relieved of that hideous invention of the western capitalist world. Their problems would be solved like the rest of the Chinese people under the Red regime: they pay no income tax for one very simple reason — no income!

Zooming taxes appear to be crumbling the long standing Puritan ethic against legalized gambling.

Special state surveys conducted among independent business people in the nation's two biggest states, in size, welfare loads, in tax burdens, and in deficits, by the National Federation of Independent Business finds a majority now favoring state legalized gambling to reduce the tax bite.

Although New York already has a state operated lottery and horse betting establishments, the revelation an $8 billion state deficit has created an apparent desire for the state to turn even more to gambling rather than taxes.

Currently, 54 per cent say they favor "opening the state to legalized gambling such as Nevada now has to obtain additional revenue."

In hard pressed California, 64.8 per cent say "yes" to the question, "would you be in favor of State supervised lotteries to provide additional funds for the operation of state government to decrease taxes?"

In California, only betting at track pari-mutual windows is legal. "Bookies" are illegal, largely because they divert the action away from the tracks where the state gets a percentage of the betting take. In fact, some claim the state's crime rate is due to police facilities being engaged in cracking down on bookies instead of being concerned with violent types of crime.

For a long time, the independent business people of California located in the area of the race tracks raised protests against horse racing on the grounds that people spent their money at the tracks and failed to pay their bills.

Undoubtedly a great deal of this change of attitude is due to the fact that huge sums go from California to Nevada casinos only a bare four hours away by auto, and minutes by air. Whenever a bill is introduced into the California legislature to open some form of gambling in California, there is great concern in Nevada.

However, as all types of taxes are on the increase in California, the residents of that state are becoming more conscious that Nevada is operating without levying either a personal or corporate income tax, with a sales tax that cannot exceed 3½ per cent, no inheritance taxes, and a property tax that is limited by law to $5 per $100 dollars of assessed valuation. By contrast, in San Francisco, for example, the sales tax is 5 per cent, and the property tax almost $13, and there is a drive to enact a city income tax on top of the existing state income tax.

Despite the fact that Nevada has practically no tax income, with most revenues coming from legalized gambling, it ranks 18th among the states in tax revenues per thousand dollars of income. New York and California rank at the top of the list.

A typical comment comes from the owner of a California service firm who says, "Taxes are the largest drain on profits in small and large business. To give the government adequate money and still relieve the pressure on business tax, may I suggest a Federal lottery? It can be handled by the Treasury Department, and use a $1 bill as the ticket.

One-half to be sent in for the ticket and one-half as a receipt (both halves have a serial number for identification.) Take 50 per cent of the money for prizes of various sizes and 50 per cent for taxes and the small cost to conduct the lottery. Using $1 bills would: (1) avoid counterfeit; (2) no salesmen necessary; (3) no printing and cost of special tickets; (4) readily available to customers at all times. The prizes should be income tax free. The post office could sell special envelopes of correct size for one-half the $1 bill, stamped and pre-addressed for 10 cents and the ease of handling and extra cost would help make up the loss of money in the postal department.

"I truly believe the public at large would support such a lottery and it could develop a tax that could and should be used to give the business of the United States some relief."

The New Yorker is a snob magazine. I have been a reader for many years to see just how snobbish the ads are. Here are some examples, we are speaking about sculptures in glass:

Noah: Sculptured crystal-glass designed by Paul Schulze, 14" high, limited edition $8,500.00 each.

Wise Men: There will be no more, just 250 of the original works of art by Waterford, 10" vase, numbered and certified in writing $1,200.00 each.

Pioneer Scott: Limited edition of 200 porcelain, $1,000.00

Eleanor of Aquitaine: Retold in procelain by Cybis, limited edition of 750, 13½ inches high, $875.00

Now of course this is not all the ads in the magazine that sculputred glass or porcelain, there is some in there that sell for $53.00 and some for $100.00, but most of it you can see that the New Yorker is a magazine of the ultra rich. I guess that is what you would call them, who have something like this to talk about.

HOW TO BALANCE
THE BUDGET

We have been thinking of ways to induce President Nixon and members of Congress to stop running up huge federal deficits.

Mere words haven't even slowed the spending in Washington. The deficit last year was $23 billion. This year it is estimated it will be $27 billion.

There is too much apathy to organize another Boston Tea Party.

Besides it isn't considered good form or the ecological thing to do -- our harbors and rivers already being the recipients of too many other pollutants without adding huge amounts of tea.

Then the idea came to us from an editorial in the St. Louis Globe- Democrat. It was so simple and direct we were surprised that no one else had proposed it.

Here it is:

"Why not require the President and each member of the House and Senate to pay a one cent penalty for each million dollars that the federal budget goes into deficit each year.

"For example, if the federal deficit for 1972 does reach $27,000,000, the total penalty would be $2,700,000. This would be divided equally among all the members of Congress and the President.

"By our figures, the penalty for every member of the House and Senate and the President would be $5,037.31. Now that isn't a huge amount in relation to the $27,000,000 but if they each had to pay $5,037.31 at the end of the year for going this far in the red, we feel reasonably confident the budget would not only be balanced next year, but show a sizable surplus.

"There's only one hitch to this idea. It probably would have to be approved by Congress and President Nixon. It might be difficult to get their support."

ROLLING WITH THE PUNCH

During the four years since an electric power failure blacked out a large section of the eastern seaboard, work has been going steadily ahead to perfect interconnection of electric utility systems. Commenting on the eastern seaboard blackout in 1965, an electric industry analyst says, "The possibilities of a reoccurance have not been eliminated, but the chances of such an extensive blackout happening again are minuscule." Improvements in utility operations range from better relays and circuit breakers, computerization and closer supervision to construction programs increasing reserve capacity.

In laymen's language, interconnected utility systems appear to be developing a great capacity to "roll with the punch" when sudden load increases occur. THe analyst notes, "Since the major blackout three years ago, New York has had another power failure, but all anyone ever knew about it was a slight flickof the lights. Through the major interconnected grid system, when it became apparent that there was an overload, New York began drawing power from New Jersey which, in turn, began drawing power from someone else with power being ultimately supplied from as far west as Michigan."

What many people seem to fail to realize is that no one is more interested in bringing this country's vast electric power systems to the ultimate peak of reliability than the electric industry itself..especially the nearly 80 per cent of the industry that falls under public regulation as investor-owned, taxpaying enterprise. The rigidities of excessive federal control in the name of electric power reliability might well shatter the tradition of reliability which governs the operations of the investor-owned companies.

BOON IN 50 YEARS

Metal from a British warship sent to the bottom in the second month of World War I is aiding scientists in the treatment of disease.

The heavy battle cruiser HMS Cressy was torpedoed on Sept. 22, 1914, about 25 miles off the Dutch coast. When a Hamburg scrap metal firm began salvaging the ship's six to eight inch thick plating a few years ago, 60 tons of the steel were snapped up by Hamburg University's physiological-chemical institute and used in the construction of Europe's most efficient human radioactive detector.

This metal that had been lying 20 fathoms deep in the sea for half a century was considered precious because it had been made before the atomic era. Steel manufactured since 1945 has been inevitably contaminated with radioactivity from atomic and nuclear bomb tests.

In a classic example of turning a sword into a plowshare, an average of 50 patients a day are now wheeled into the detector in the course of the institute's diagnostic and fundamental research program.

IN A GLASS HOUSE

The powerful AFL—CIO labor union has gone on record in favor of more federal regulation of the investor-owned utility industry. In endorsing an electric power reliability law, it proposes that the legislation be strengthened "to achieve the goal of lower-cost power to all consumers..." The powerful union also believes that government "yardsticks" are indispensable to reasonable electric rates. The nation's major labor union is in favor of virtual dictatorial control by government over one of the nation's most basic industries. Its advocacy of government control stops just one step short of outright socialization.. a curious position for a union that enjoys the greatest benefits of the capitalistic system to take.

So far as electric power reliability is concerned, it has become apparent that further federal control would have just the opposite effect. Needed power projects have been delayed time and again by the cumbersome mechanism of existing regulation. The electric power reliability measure now before Congress would simply be another step down the road toward paralyzing federal control. An official of a leading power company notes, "Clearly, this is a bill which deals with reliability of power supply only incidentally. Basically, it is a bill that provides for centralized federal management of the entire electric power industry in this country, both public and investor-owned."

The nation's labor unions, in asking for control of the electric industry, may find themselves in an exceedingly fragile glass house, since their own "reliability" leaves much to be desired. They have demonstrated a willingness to capriciously disrupt production lines in the most vital services. We should all remember that the principle of the right of private ownership and management of business is no less valid than the principle of the right of collective bargaining. Together, they are what we call the U. S. economic system.

TIME FOR A CRACK—DOWN

It seems to us that the time has come for a bit of shop talk in this space. It isn't pleasant, and some may think it unbecoming, that we should publicly criticize members of our own profession, but there is a responsibility for each of use to police his own trade, whenever possible. Those who work in a given field are usually better qualified to judge the actions of their fellow-tradesmen than an outsider.

Thus, a policeman knows when another officer is acting contrary to his oath, or orders; the AMA is the best judge of misconduct in the medical field, and the American Bar Association is a qualified body for reviewing possible misbehavior by members of the legal profession. Further, it is more often than not the case that the industry or profession which does some self=policing protects the innocent from the broad brush of adverse public opinion.

In recent months we have been more and more disturbed by the willingness of certain irresponsible news reporters to generate news, to instigate disorder, and to frustrate law enforcement. Police officers in various cities have insisted that biased reporting, particularly photographic reporting, has ignored provocations suffered by the police, but on the other hand featured police response with force.

In a number of cases it has been alleged that reporters and photographers have been contacted by persons or organizations bent upon breaking the law so that the incidents would be fully reported in the press. In these cases, cooperating newsmen refrained from alerting law-enforcement officers. In one city, a group of radicals invaded a Selective Service office and burned all of the 1-A draft records. Ample coverage of the "event" was provided by the news media, and photographs have been printed showing the actual burning of the records. These pictures were taken before the arrival of law officers on the scene.

It seems abundantly clear that the newsmen involved did not notify proper authorities that gross violations of the law of the land were in prospect. In our opinion that makes them accessories in violation of the law, and in violation of their professional trust.

Perhaps some prosecutions of irrensponsible newsmen will discourage such practices in the future. Newsmen who violate their trust endanger a free press.

DOWN, DOWN, DOWN

A late issue of the Wall Street Journal starts off an article on electric power rates with the observation, "electricity prices keep going down, down, down..and some buyers of power keep getting madder and madder." As the Journal points out, the average price per kilowatt hour of power supplied to residential customers was 2.16 cents in 1967, 2.37 cents five years before, and 3.22 cents just after World War II. Very few commodities or services can boast such a record at a time when most other costs have gone up, up, up.

In the light of a long record of declining rates, one could reasonably expect that the electric industry would be, as it well deserves, virtually immune to charges of overpricing, But, it seems, that no industry that provides such an elemental necessity as electricity to nearly every home and business in the land, regardless of its good record, can expect to escape the attention of critics who seek to make a political issue out of the price of its service.

What many of us do not realize is that our electric bills are bigger because electricity has become an all purpose servant. The modern home has everything from electric carving knives to electric heat, thus it is not surprising that power bills go up as rates decline.

The electric industry is currently investing nearly $6 billion annually in expanded generating, transmission and distribution systems just to keep up with growing power needs. The industry is faced with soaring costs just as is everyone else. If political and consumer pressure succeed in forcing rates below economically jusitified levels, investors cannot be expected to put up the money for continued expansion of the industry. The price of excessive rate cuts could be less electric power...and less electric power reliability.

We highly favor and support the petitions calling for the referendum seeking to place a penny tax per bottle on soft drinks for conservation purposes and have said so before. The comments printed here are from a letter written by Dan Bollow, Shelby County's Prosecuting Attorney. Bollow is highly respected by all of us, not only for his ability as an attorney, but also for his devotion to civic progress in his community of Shelbyville. Bollow made his comments concerning a letter written by Senator Maurice Schechter, who opposes the tax.

"The principal use of the additional revenue will provide expansion of existing programs of game law enforcement and rare wildlife distribution, but to meet a problem that has existed in Europe for centuries, and now first rears its head in America. With rapid urbanization more people are feeling the urge to escape to the country and be closer to nature. There is little public land in Missouri. The financially able have purchased land suitable for recreational use, and the increased demand has inflated the market value of such land, Those less fortunate have frequently become the uninvited, unwanted and oftentimes destructive guest of the farmer.

Although most government agencies do not act until crisis, the Commission, with unusual foresight, has planned a land purchase program, while acquisition costs are lower than can be expected in the future. The Commission plans to acquire by purchase or easement, rough, undeveloped land, not suited for agricultural or commercial purposes, for recreational use by all members of the public, whether they be hunter, hiker, fisherman, or nature lover. In Europe, hunting and fishing are enjoyed only by the wealthy elite. Plans, such as that proposed by the Conservation Federation, will prevent this from happening in America.

'Don't tax the kids' is the emotionally charged opposition cry, with the principal opponent the soft drink industry. However, I've noticed that the change my children spend on soda originally came from dad's pocket. I challenge Senator Schechter to find an age group with more concern for our environment than today's children. Indeed, they will be the beneficiaries of the programs planned by our Conservation Commission.——Shelbina Democrat.

NAME DESIGNERS TURN TO MEN'S WEAR——WHERE THE ACTION IS!——If you've been following the fashion pages of this paper, you must have gotten the idea that the current heightened interest in men's fashions has attracted many new designers into the field. Most of them came from the women's fashion field -- names the ladies know well. It reminds us of an old story -- of the little candy store operator who met John D. ROckefeller and said, "If I had as much money as you, I'd be richer than you. I'd have all that money...and my candy store too." And that's the status of the men's fashion industry now..it has all those women's designers, and THEIR OWN TOO!

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON: Whispers of a $100,000 bribe offer led to the Senate Commerce Committee's sudden, mysterious investigation of "allegations of impropriety" by El Paso Natural Gas Company.

We have been working for weeks on the story. The details are still in dispute. However, here's why Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., began issuing subpoenas:

Two attorneys have sworn they were told by Utah's Democratic Chairman John Klas that he was offered a $100,000 interest-free deposit for his bank if he would agree not to testify against an El Paso bill. He turned down the offer and appeared against the bill.

The controversial legislation would nullify the Supreme Court's orders to El Paso to sell the old Pacific Northwest Pipeline Company. Magnuson has held up action on the bill, which he supports, until the alleged impropriety is cleared up.

El Paso, meanwhile, has called the bribe talk "an absolute, unmitigated lie."

We have established that Klas on October 21 arrived in Washington and joined attorney Beverly Moore, Jr., for a drink at the soigne Statler Hilton Hotel. Moore works for consumer crusader Ralph Nader, who is fighting the El Paso bill.

BRIBE STORY

The two men talked over Scotch while a chanteuse sang softly in the background. Moore said he had heard that an attorney, acting on behalf of El Paso, had sounded out Klas about the $100,000 deposit at a meeting in Salt Lake City. It was reputedly held at the exclusive Alta Club.

Klas is a vice president of Salt Lake City's Continental Bank of Trust. As Moore heard the story, the El Paso lawyer had offered to deposit $100,000, interest free, in the bank if Klas would call off his appearance before the Senate. The huge deposit would be worth up to $10,000 a year in loan income for Continental. The offer was made, Moore understood, in front of another Continental Bank executive.

As Moore recited what he had heard, Klas nodded affirmation. Moore took this as acknowledgment that the bribe story was true. Nevertheless, Klas said he had no intention of testifying about any bribe offer.

"Why not?" demanded Moore. He asked whether Klas feared economic reprisals.

"Not really," replied Klas.

"What is it them?" asked Moore.

"Of course, they (El Paso) would deny it," said Klas, "and I am worried about my credibility on cross examination."

"Are you sure in your own mind this offer was seriously made?" Moore pressed.

Klas' spontaneous reply, as Moore recalls it, was: "Oh, absolutely. There is no doubt in my mind at all. In fact, there was another bank official with me at the time, and we both came away with exactly the same impression."

ANOTHER ENCOUNTER

Next morning, Klas showed up at the Senate Commerce Committee to testify against the El Paso bill. He had an unexpected encounter with Bill Bennett, a fiesty California official who has fought El Paso for years.

Bennett introduced himself in the corridor outside the committee room.

"I've heard the story about the $100,000 offer to your bank," said Bennett. "Are you going to tell them about it?"

"No," replied Klas. "It was made in such a way that it could have been interpreted as a jest."

"You've got an obligation to testify," urged Bennett.

"No, replied Klas.

"If I get up and tell about it, will you back me up?" pressed Bennett.

The Utahn again said, "No."

"Why not?" pleaded Benne "It would hurt the bank," said Klas.

Both Bennett and Moore are ready to repeat these conversations under oath before the Senate Commerce Committee. Chairman Magnuson, meanwhile, has subpoenaed Klas, attorney Dan Berman, who has represented El Paso, and Continental Bank vice President Larry Higgins.

We questioned Klas who would tell us only: "I am really....in a box." Berman and Higgins declined to return our repeated calls. When we asked Continental's president K.J. Sullivan about the $100,000 offer, he spluttered that we were asking about the bank's confidential business. "I am going to hang up," he announced. And he did.

Footnote: It was a bribe offer that defeated another natural gas bill back in 1956. The late Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., reported to the Senate that he had been offered a brown paper sack stuffed with $2,500 in hundred-dollar bills. He identified the bagman as John Neff, who had been authorized to make "certain expenditures" by his boss, Superior Oil lobbyist Elmer Patman.

Market Prices Noted Before Decision Made

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chances are this little piggie went to market and another little piggie stayed hom because the owners of both little piggies spent some time deciding whether to sell any little piggies today.

In each case, te farmer who made the decision on whether to sell or wait until another day probably checked the previous day's prices and at least two separate markets.

Those prices are compiled continually by the market news division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

These market reports are then relayed by the Associated Press to its member newspapers and broadcasters to allow local livestock producers to estimate whether it is a good time to take their animals to market and if so perhaps which market would be best.

The individual livestock producer most likely will check the prices at one of the 11 major terminal markets — probably whichever is closest to him. In Iowa this mean Omaha, Sioux City, South St. Paul, Joeliet, Kansas City or National Stockyards at East St. Louis, Ill.

He will also check the interior market — the Iowa-southern Minnesota direct market. The interior market includes the range of prices being paid for livestock purchased at the farm or at the packing plant itself.

"He must decide whether to sell close to the farm or whether he is ahead to take his livestock to the packing plant — it costs money to get to that point," said Daryl Vanderflugt, the officer in charge of the Des Moines Market News office.

At the same time, the livestock farmer must decide whether or not he would make a larger profit by taking his animals to the nearest large terminal market and selling them there.

"Most livestock in Iowa is sold direct," Vanderflugt said.

But even the farmer who always sells his animals near his home still checks the terminal market prices. Those who sell at the terminals check the interior market prices.

"The direct trade is possibly established in relation to the terminal marke for any one particular day," Vanderflugt said. "But the trade at the terminal market the following day is strongly contigent on the direct trade of the previous day."

Vanderflugt says the first prices established each day are those at the terminal market, which depend much on supply and demand. In turn, prices at the terminal market and the number of livestock received there influence the prices paid at the interior market.

"If they have 50,000 hogs at the terminal, it's likely the interior will move 75,000 to 90,000 that same day," Vanderflugt said. "If 90,000 to 100,000 are moved in the terminals, it's likely the next day will be a light market. It tends to reduce the demand."

"Our first report here is at 9:50 a.m., usually including 80 per cent of the hogs," Reese said.

November Will Be Warm Month

By LEONARD F. HAND
Farm Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE — The average monthly weather outlook for November maintains the trend for above normal temperature averages over Southeast Missouri. The Bootheel region is near the boundary line which separates areas expected to receive near and above normal precipitation.

The pattern anticipates that the bulk of cold air will remain concentrated over the western states, while warm conditions predominate in the east. Even a slight shift of this pattern, which was notable during the latter half of October, could bring the Bootheel within range of showers which develop as lows move out of the Rockies through the Plains and Mississippi Valley.

The Bootheel was unusually well shielded from these rains in October. Reports from Poplar Bluff show a total rainfall of 0.61 inch for the month, while the Portageville total was 1.36 inches. Most of the shower which moved regularly through the state with cold fronts passed northward out of range before reaching the southeast corner of the state.

The rain pattern for this month is not clear - cut, and each storm will have to be assessed individually for its potential for wetting. Weather so far this season has been excellent for getting the crop out. Continued favorable conditions through mid - November will see the bulk of the cotton, and a major portion of soybeans harvested.

Prospects for above normal temperature improve chances for wheat planted behind the harvest to get a good start. Soil moisture is mostly on the low side, ranging from sufficient to sustain early planted small grain and cover crops to conditions too dry to germinate seed. Improved chance for rain may even out this situation during the period. The warm trend may encourage farmers to plant cover on some of the lighter soils to minimize effects winds early next season.

Data prepared by Dr. Wayne Decker, Chairman of the Atmospheric Science Department, University of Missouri, shows the following in regard to normal freeze dates for the Bootheel:

Light Freeze (28 to 32)- North, Oct. 25, South Nov. 4.

Moderate (24 to 28) - Oct. 30, Nov. 20.

Hard (less than 24) - Nov. 14, Nov. 29.

Normal rain for the Bootheel as a whole in November is 3.89 inches.

Normals for individual cities are: Cape Girardeau 3.61 inches, Dexter 3.87 inches, Morehouse 4.06 inches, New Madrid 4.28 inches, Poplar Bluff 3.73 inches, Caruthersville 3.87 inches, Doniphan 3.81 inches, Fisk 3.78 inches, Parma 4.16 inches and Sikeston 4.18 inches.

Short term averages for other cities: Advance 3.66 inches, Bloomfield 4.27 inches, Clearwater Dam 4.04 inches, Kennett 4.31 inches, Portageville 4.27 inches, Qulin 4.46 inches, Zalma 3.85 inches, Bernie 4.67 inches, Charleston 4.46 inches, Deering 3.30 inches, Malden 3.60 inches, Puxico 4.17 inches and Wappapello Dam 3.85 inches.

Long term records show that in Novembers with above normal rainfall averages have been 5.71 inches at Poplar Bluff, 5.95 inches at Sikeston, and 6.34 inches at Caruthersville. Ranges of precipitation were 4.08 to 9.01 inches at Poplar Bluff, 4.15 to 15.04 at Sikeston, and 4.08 to 12.00 inches at Caruthersville.

Long term records show that Novembers with near normal rainfall have produced averages of 3.00 inches at Poplar Bluff, 2.81 inches at Sikeston, and 3.16 inches at Caruthersville. Ranges in those years were from 1.22 and from 2.25 to 3.85 inches at Caruthersville.

Cotton Prices Steady And Demand Brisk

HAYTI — Activity on Missouri cotton markets remained at a brisk pace last week according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's classing office. Demand was strong for all qualities and prices were steady. Growers offered cotton freely and sold a large volume at prices ranging from 700 to 800 points above CCC loan rates for mixed lots of Strict Low Middling and lower grades sold in mixed lots 900 to 950 points above the loan. Ginyard prices for cottonseed remained steady at an average of $54 per ton.

Harvesting entered the final stages at a brisk pace. Weather conditions were ideal and farmers kept most ginyards filled up with trailer loads of seed cotton. Good to excellent yeilds were reported at most locations.

The Consumer and Marketing Service's Hayti Classing Office classed 37,000 samples for farmers last week. This brings the total samples classed for the season through November 5 to 273,000. Strict Low Middling was the predominant grade on samples classed last week accounting for 64% compared to 55% the week before. Strict Low Middling Light Spotted accounted for the next highest percentage at 17% compared to 21% a week earlier. Forty - seven percent of the samples had staples of 1 3/32 inches compared to 79% the preceeding week. The amount of samples stapling 1 1/16 inches increased from 11% to 30% last week. Ninety - four percent of the samples miked in the 3.5 to 4.9 category. Breaking strength averaged 81,000 pounds per square inch on the samples tested.

Wedding Gifts Sent To Church Cause Problem

Dear Ann Landers: "Dynamite Lil" sounds as if she has met my husband. I would welcome a visit from her. I would be happy to tell her what to expect from this "cultured, exciting man." I wish someone had told me.

He does not eat with his family because I have refused to bring meals on a tray in front of the TV, to his bed, or to the garage if he happens to be working on the car.

I may be a bore but I'm not a slob. Although I haven't bought a stitch of clothes in six years I sew well and I always look presentable. He's right, however, when he says I have turned my back on his family. I should have done so earlier -- before his brother borrowed my car and smashed it up, before his sister "borrowed" our home to give a party. (Our silverware was stolen, the rugs were ruined and cigaret holes were burned on our grand piano.)

So, Lil, please keep trying to pin him down. I'd gladly givehim a divorce so he could marry you. Call if I can help, I'm sick of the bum. ——Also Stuck.

Dear Also: If Lil calls, let me know. After all, remember I brought you together!

Dear Ann Landers: Customs DO change, and I hope you will print this letter and help change an age-old custom -- bringing wedding gifts personally to the church or to the reception.

This is what usually happens: The well-meaning guest must hand the wedding gift to a relative because the bride is busy in the receiving line. After the reception or dinner the bride and groom leave for the honeymoon and the gift is placed in the custody of the bride's mother. (There was no time to open it.) The bride's mother must then take the gift home and give it to the couple when they return. When the bride and groom come back from the honeymoon there are a hundred things to do. The bride's mother has to bring the gifts from her place to the bride's.

So please, Ann, tell your readers to send gifts to the bride before the wedding. It's much easier. — Sacramento Reader.

Dear Sac: Your letter makes a lot of sense. I hope it makes a dent.

Dear Ann Landers: Since bicycling has become so popular I thought I should write a letter and tell you a couple of things the average cyclist does not know -- and it could kill him.

This may sound ridiculously elementary, but it's shocking how many cyclists don't realize they should ride WITH the traffic, and not against it in the opposite direction. The motorist who sees an object coming toward him will automatically swerve and he might hit an oncoming car.

Another problem is the driver who honks his horn at a cyclist who is ahead of him. It can be frightening. It can also cause the cyclist to turn around to see who or what is behind him, and he might hit a patch of sand, or a hole.

If I prevented just one accident by writing this letter, it was worth the time and effort. Thank You. ——Connecticut Wheels

Dear Wheels: Thanks for taking the time. It WAS worth it.

SERVING THE STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF
OF SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL SINCE 1936.

Students Make Last Trip To Menard

Sociology classes, instructed by Mrs. Catherine Matthews and Bob Depro, made field trips to Menard State Penitentiary at Chester, Ill., October 27-28, under supervision of Mr. Depro.

Because of increasing unrest in the prison, the officials are ceasing all high school tours through the prison.

Two groups went to the prison, the juniors on the 27th and the seniors on the 28th.

This reporter had the opportunity to attend the tour with the senior group.

Upon arriving at the prison, the seniors were taken into a reception area where they were searched for any metal objects or chewing gum. They went one at a time through an electric eye into the main yard.

First of the activities on the tour was a panel discussion with six prisoners; two murderers, two armed robbers, and two men convicted of drug violations.

The students and prisoners talked about a variety of topics ranging from prison conditions and homosexuality to racism and drugs. Most of the prisoners tried to impress upon the students that prison was a breeding ground of all kinds of crime and perversion.

After this discussion, the students were taken to the prison chapel which serves the general Protestants, the Catholics, the Jewish inmates, and most of the other religious orders in the prison.

Seniors were then taken through a prison factory where underclothes are made.

Finally the most shocking experience of the trip came when the group was taken into the execution room with the electric chair. Those seniors who were interested were allowed to sit in the electric chair as the guard explained the procedure for execution.

Returning to the main office the group was again searched and "released" to board the buses for the trip home.

SENIORS! ONLY 12 DAYS REMAIN for you to turn your glossy print in for the yearbook. If studio pictures are not turned in to the journalism department by Monday, Nov. 22, school picture will be used.

GROWLER SALES will end Monday, Nov. 22. This is only 10 days away. Students are urged to purchase their yearbooks as soon as possible. Growlers may be purchased from any member of the journalism staff.

Last week's mystery baby was Sheryl Baker.

Seniors Begin Magazine Sale

Seniors began magazine sales last Wednesday at a meeting during second hour.

A representative of the Perfect School Plan, explained the sales to the seniors. He passed out subscription forms and booklets that list the magazines for sale.

The representative told the seniors that approximately 40 per cent of the money collected by the class will be profit. Purchases of magazines will benefit the seniors by helping them to learn about American enterprise. Earnings from this activity will help pay for the trip planned by the seniors at the end of the year.

Each sale from either a special offer of two magazines for $6.50 or of a TV Guide will earn for the senior a small stuffed animal. Seniors who sell a certain number of magazine subscriptions are eligible for a prize.

A special prize of a trip to New Orleans and the Super Bowl will be awarded to 13 students, not necessarily from Sikeston. Completed subscription order blanks for Life magazine serve as entries in the contest. The student may enter as many times as he sells Life subscriptions.

Approximately 160 magazines and 13 books are available for sale. The senior class of 1972 would appreciate support by the student body.

Senior Candy Sale, Success

So far this year, Sikeston senior's campaign is to raise money for the senior party at the end of this year. The candy bar sale has been successful an hopefully much money will be added to the amount raised at the rodeo this summer.

All 375 boxes of candy bars have been distributed to seniors and almost all have been sold. approximately 200 seniors are participating in the campaign with many seniors showing remarkable skill in salesmanship as they try to sell their boxes in order to get more.

No deadline as such has been set for the completion of sales, although it is hoped that seniors will return money collected as soon as possible.

Bulldogs' Impressions Of Senior Peppers' Homecoming Decorations

by Merry Gay Evans

Members of the football team were asked earlier in the week the question, "What did you think of the homecoming decorations at your home and here at school?" Here are some of the replies --

Joe Beck -- "The school decorations were better than they've ever been. The assembly was great too."

Roy Marshall -- "They were groovy and way out. They were together."

Pat Collins -- "My house was a mess! I think they were the best decorations ever for homecoming."

Bo Ralph -- "They were very good. It reached the bellows of my heart."

Steve Ferrell -- "They were very nifty!"

Bill Colwick -- "They were good. The house decorations were all right."

Rick Eisenbach -- "They were cool even though they kept the whole house up all night."

Roy Yarber -- "I think they were wonderful. The Red Peppers put out all they had for the guys. It shows they care and I love it. Keep behind us and we'll keep on winning!"

Dennis Overbey -- "Uh! Thanks a lot. They were ever so awe inspiring."

Ron Hon -- "They were good and they made us feel good because it showed the Red Peppers were backing us up as a team."

Bryan Montgomery -- "It showed Red Pepper spirit! It showed they backed us all the way."

Richard Blankenship -- "There were enough of them. I'm glad I didn't have to clean them up."

Librarian Frederick W. Huff -- "I think this is the best year of decorations in many a year -- especially the outside and hall decorations."

Robert Reynolds -- "The decorations that were placed at my house for the homecoming were quite inspirational."

John Farris -- "They were all right. I watched the whole thing from my window."

Christie Swann Is Homecoming Queen

Senior Christie Swann was crowned the 1971-72 football homecoming queen at the annual dance in the cafetorium, Saturday evening, October 30.

Christie was crowned by Peggy McMullin, 1970-71 homecoming queen.

The court consists of Penny Leek, escorted by Pat Collins, and Mary Lynn Caldwell, escorted by Bill Colwick.

Music at the homecoming dance was provided by "Slow Gold" and "Limbaugh, McClellan, and Moore", two local groups.

The homecoming dance was from 8:30 to 11 p.m. Saturday night. The crowning took place at approximately 10 p.m.

Immediately following the crowning, queen Christie and her escort danced to the traditional queen's waltz. Attendants Penny and Mary Lynn with their escorts joined the couple.

Cafetorium was decorated by members of the sophomore class. Sophomores were also in charge of the crowning, providing the music, and cleaning up after the dance.

Outstanding displays of decorations at school Friday were provided by senior Red Peppers. Senior Sharon Scherer was chairman of the Red Peppers for the decorations.

Decorations included Bulldogs, murals, victory signs, streamers in the traditional colors, the recognition of all football players in the quadrangle, and giant replicas of both a doghouse and football

At half - time of the Sikeston - Jackson football game Friday night, the three candidates were introduced and escorted across the football field to music provided by the high school marching band. The band was in SHS block formation.

Christie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Swann, 309 Kramer Drive. As a senior, she participates in many school activities. She is a member of Red Peppers, Foreign Language Club, Concert Choir VI, and intramurals. In her spare time, Christie's favorite hobby is art.

The presentation was made by John Leible, president of the sophomore class.

Peppy Peppers, Bum Chosen At PB Game

by Linda Spitzmiller

Chosen as peppy Peppers for the Poplar Bluff game were Vikki Harris, Patti Dye, Jeannie Britt, Diane White, and Lynne Lacefield.

These girls are to be commended for going to Poplar Bluff during the teachers meeting weekend.

Vikki Harris' undaunted spirit helped lead the Bulldogs to a victory over the Poplar Bluff Mules. She was sitting on the first row, and her cheers carried to the field.

Junior voice heard above the rest was that of Patti Dye. Her spirit was not dampened by the cold weather? If anything, it was increased.

Jeannie Britt was an avid enthusiast Friday night. Her spirit was not excelled by any other sophomore at the game.

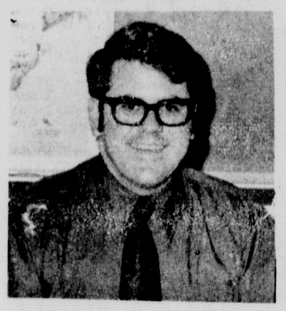

Freshmen redeemd themselves at the Poplar Bluff game by having two Peppy Peppers. These two enthusiastic girls were Diane White and Lynne Lacefield. It was too difficult to choose between the two, and they were both selected.

Bleacher Bum spirit committee chose only one loud- mouth bum. The fact that sophomore Rick Love is on the football team may account for his outstanding enthusiasm.

Depro Holds State Office Of Teachers

Bob Depro, geograpny instructor in Sikeston high school, was elected Secretary - Treasurer of the Missouri Council for Geographic Education at the Missouri State Teachers Convention in St. Louis last week.

This council is a group made up of high school and college teachers who teach geography.

"More people are becoming involved in this program because the Missouri Department of Education requires geography in all high schools," said Mr. Depro.

Sikeston was the first locality in Missouri to require a full - year course in geography. An elective semester course is also offered the second year.

Other officers on the council are Dr. Alfred Robertson, president, from Southeast Missouri State College, and Dr. Russel Gerlach, vice president, from Southwest Missouri State College.

Mr. Depro was nominated for the office by Dr. Robertson, one of his college instructors.

Bands Perform Final Show For Season

Sikeston high school marching band, directed by Ron williams, will present its final show of the season tonight at half - time when Sikeston meets Maplewood in a non-conference battle.

The band will come down the field in four company fronts to the tune of "Robert E. Lee." Sikeston high school marching band will form a diamond and go directly into the shape of a plus. The band will form a jug and play "Mountain Dew."

Following this, the Bulldog band will go back to the plus and play "Marching Halleloo." During the tune, they will do precision drills using the hotdog and pinwheel patterns.

Sikeston high school marching band will do its finale drill toward the stadium and will exit the field playing "The Red and the Black."

Mr. Williams commented, "I believe that the band has made a tremendous improvement this year mainly because of spirit and pride in the senior class members. This was their last year and they wanted it to be a fine band.

"They did considerable planning to make sure that this year would be a success. The merit system has been very important and has made members strive toward perfection.

"I think that we had a great marching season and I'm looking forward to as much success in the coming concert season."

Freshman band will make its final presentation of the season at the pre - game show tonight at 7 on the stadium field. Freshman band is directed by Pat Curry and will be led on the field by drum majorette Nancy Harper.

Freshman band will go down the field in a "diagonal -daze" formation. Instead of being in four company fronts, a block - buster formation will be formed. Band will go directly into concert formation and play "Hawaii Five-O."

Twirlers on the line are Sharon Henley, Lisa Cox, Beverly Morphis, and head majorette Sherrie Mitchell.

After the concert number, freshman band will do a drill to "Victor's March" and then play "Tea For Two." "The Star Spangled Banner" will be played as the band stands in place.

The freshman band will execute a "floating diamond" drill to the tune of "Days of Glory." After the tune, the fanfare "Invocation of Alberich" will be played, and this will conclude their show. Traditionally, the band will exit the field playing the school song, "The Red and the Black."

Mr. Curry commented, "The success of the freshman band this year has been because of the attitutde of the kids. They've worked so hard, and I think they have come a long way."

Time Moves Swiftly; Don't Live In Past

WHEN ONE STOPS AND LOOKS at his past years and sees how swiftly time has moved, he realizes that everything that he has done is behind him and he cannot but wish that he could have some of those years to live again.

He looks back and sees his past mistakes and wishes he could correct them, and he realizes that he cannot.

With each passing day maturity gets a step closer for young people and the simple things of life get complicated and the accomplished goals of life get simple.

A time comes in each person's life when he has to make a decision.

This decision could change his whole life. When a person has reached this point in life, he must look ahead and see what lies in store — not only for him, but for others close to him.

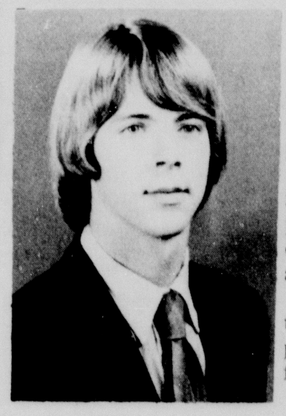

One should always consider the well being of others as well as the well being of himself.

When a person reaches that point in life where he has to decide what he will do, he should do what he thinks is right. If he finds out too late that he has done the wrong thing, he should retrace his steps and start over because it is never too late for anything.

Life has its bad things as well as good, and a person should never give up, he should do the very best he can.

Education, Friendship Come In Many Ways

DURING our high school years we sometimes find ourselves belonging to various cliques, doing practically everything with the same people, and not reaching for the other people outside of the circle of friends we gather around us.

We somehow forget that there are other interesting people besides our four or five best friends.

Certainly every individual has something worthwhile to offer to any individual that will take the time to listen. It is amazing how much one can learn if he only listens to the voices around him. Of course, friends ultimately influence a person more than a casual acquaintance but the education received from outside is also valuable in its own place.

One mistake many people make when conversing with others is that they compare their vaues and habits with those of the person with whom their speaking and judging them accordingly. We shouldn't compare his or her life to our own or anyone else's, we should take it for what it is. We should also concentrate on being ourselves totally, playing roles should be left for actors, not responsible human beings.

What it all adds up to is coming out of our shells, our roles, or whatever games we might be playing, and taking a different look at the others around us. All it takes is the will to learn, the patience to listen, and the interest in making the world a friendlier place to live.

When we were younger, our mothers told us not to speak to strangers. However, now that we are older perhaps a reverse in policy would be a change for the better. Meet new people, talk to the ones that you already know, find out how they feel and what they are concerned about.

Surely this type of attitude in our schools alone would not only promote friendship and understanding, but it would also create an atmosphere in which education would come not only in the classrooms but also in the hallways.

SHS Bulldogs Finish Strong

The Sikeston Bulldogs finished their football season on a high note with a 14-7 victory over the Maplewood-Richmond Heights Blue Devils at Public School Stadium last night. Sikeston by virtue of the win, ran their record to 6-4, taking five of their last six points.

Sikeston dominated the game much more than the score would indicate. Several different times the Bulldogs were inside the 20 only to have an interception stop them. The Blue Devils picked off six SHS aerials. Maplewood finished the season at 2-7, but they played many very tough teams in the St. Louis area to a standstill, losing just 3-0 to Lindbergh.

Sikeston opened scoring in the game when quarterback Bill Colwick ran off left guard from a yard away to score. When Larry Voliva added the extra point, Sikeston led 7-0. It was alead which Sikeston held very few seconds, as senior quarterback Dennis Goggins, a deep back on the kickoff team for Maplewood returned the ensuing kickoff 88 yards for the score. When the extra point was added the score stood at 7-7 and that's exactly where it remained for the next 2½ quarters. Sikeston mounted drive after drive, but the interceptions kept killing them. Finally, with just over three and a half minutes to go Colwick hit Glenn Guttenfelder, who made a sliding catch to get the ball on the one yard line. Colwick then scored his second T-D of the night. Voliva's extra point made the score 14-7 Sikeston and that's how it ended.

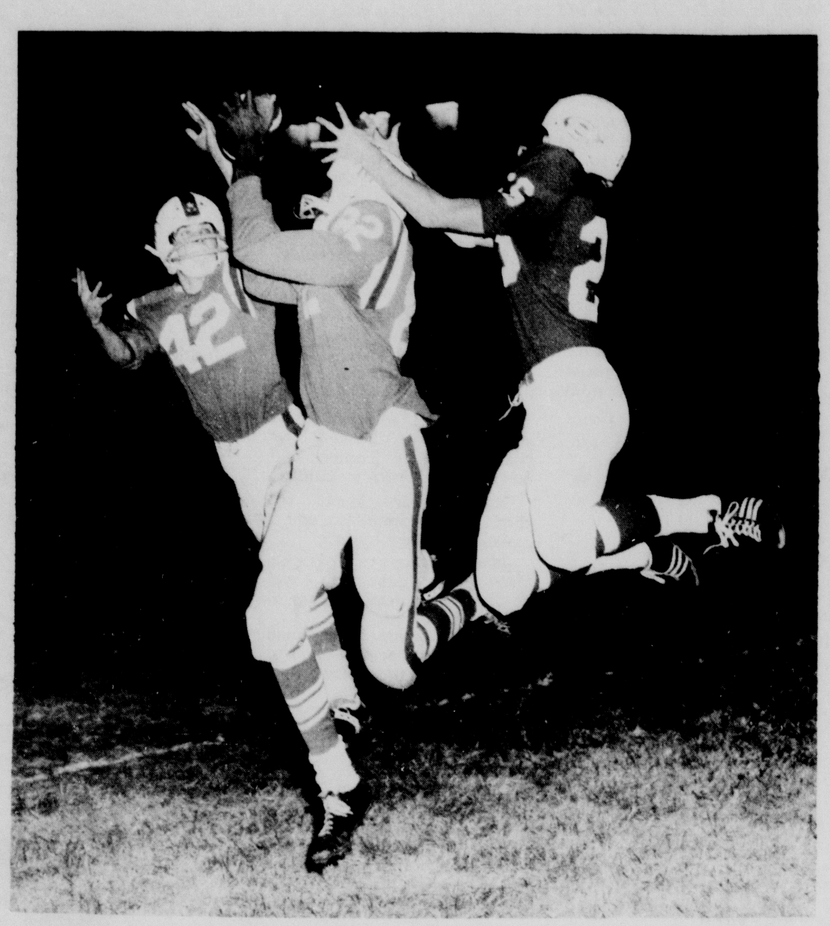

Individually there were many stars for the Bulldogs. One was tight end Steve Ferrell who extended his school record by catching eight passes for 98 yards, giving him 42 receptions on the years. Coach Bill Priday lauded the defensive platoon for a fine defensive effort, as Maplewood gained on 83 yards total offense. The Coach also said his team moved the ball well on offense, but they were very definitely hurt by the interceptions.

Seniors Bo Ralph, Brian Montgomery and Chester Yarber, to only mention a few, played key roles in the victory. Montgomery and Yarber running the ball on offense against the big bruising Blue Devils and Ralph opening up holes in the line on offense and pluging them on defense.

It was the final game of the year for eighteen Bulldogs. The team this year was not the best in Sikeston history, but the squad showed as much or more effort and energy than any team of recent years. Early in the season Coach Priday said that his team might get beaten, but he thought they would never quit. The team showed much promise by winning its last three contests and five of its last six. Several key performers will return next year and the Dogs will rate much closer look than they got this season when preseason pickings start. Bolstered by the cheering of the bleacher Bums and Red Peppers as well as the cheerleaders, the Bulldog team gave their faithful fans a chance to do something they didn't get to do last season. Ring the Victory Bell! The Dogs won only one of nine games.

Matthews jumped to a quick first period lead of 18-11 and were never headed as they raced to a 38-34 halftime lead. The Pirates seemed to have little trouble with the Risco defense as they poured in 21 -points in the third period, holding the Tigers to just six. The score at the end of three periods was Matthews 59, Risco 40. Risco did outscore the Pirates in the final period but by then Matthews' lead was comfortable and they held on for the 14-point victory.

Dexter Claims Title

DEXTER -- Daily Standard 1970 football coach of the year, Clyde Vaughn, capped a somewhat disappointing season with a 6-0 victory over rival Malden and claimed a share of the Southern Division league crown with Portageville.

A third quarter pass play from David Mathis to Mike Ward, covering five yards, was all the scoring in the game.

DHS won the statistical game, rushing for 191 yards and passing for an additional 15 on two completions in 11 passes. Malden was 144 yards rushing and 30 through the air on five of 12 passes.

New York was the first state in the Union to officially proclaim Thanksgiving Day as a holiday, in 1830.

Blocked Punt Saves PHS Win

HAYTI — Coach Jerry Cecil's Indians almost pulled a big upset but a 10 yard field goal attempt was partially blocked with 18 seconds left on the clock to give the highly favored Portageville Bulldogs a 7-6 southern division football victory here Friday night. The win kept the dogs in the Southern title picture and maintained their playoff hopes.

Everyone says that in a rivalry between two teams the records don't mean anything and this held true as Hayti battled Portageville down to the final gun.

Both teams made numerous turnovers to halt scoring drives. Fumbles and intercepted passes kept the score from going higher.

Hayti put together a 70 yard drive in the second period to go ahead in the game 6-0.

Robert Thompson, a speedy halfback ran eight yards for the only touchdown that the Indians could muster. The extra point try was no good and as a result Hayti went down to defeat by the one point margin.

The Portageville Bulldog defense that has been somewhat overshadowed by their potent offense held the Indians when they were threatening to win the game.

With the score 6-0 in the third period, Portageville put together a 70 yard drive that Chris Foster capped off with a two yard plunge. Mark Girvin kicked the extra point to win the game.

Hayti tried a field goal from the four yard line with five minutes left in the game that failed.

Halfback Robert Thompson rushed for 155 yard on 17 carried and Parker rushed for 10 yards on the ground this season.

Hayti had a total of 274 yards rushing and Randy Gardner completed four of seven passes for a total of 57 yards.

Portageville ended the regular season as co-champs in the southern division with Dexter.

Mules Lose Big

POPLAR BLUFF — The disappointing Poplar Bluff Mules closed their dismal season out on a losing note last night before a home audience as the pre-season favorites for the Northern conference crown were soundly beaten 42-8 by a team from Fox high school in Arnold. The once vaunted Mule rushing game netted but 50 yards while the defense which had been the only solid part of the Mule game gave up 249 yards. When the Mules fell behind and were forced to pass, they were helpless, connecting on only seven of 25 tries through the air for 96 yards.

Scoring was opened by Fox when Hauss returned a punt for 90 yards. The extra point was missed and the score stood 6-0, Fox, after one period. Poplar Bluff took the lead early in the second quarter when Kirby returned a fumble 91 yards. J. B. Hayes' extra point gave PB the lead 8-6. Just before the half Cox recovered a blocked punt in the end zone to give Fox the halftime lead 14-8.

The second half was all Fox as they scored four times three on passes and ran away with the contest. Poplar Bluff finished the season with a 4-6 mark. They were 2-4 in conference play.

Reindeer Open With Victory

CLARKTON -- The Clarkton Reindeer started their season off in a fine fashion, beating Cooter 66-46 Friday night. Clarkton was 1-20 last season, beating Cooter in overtime for their only victory. Last night, buoyed by a large crowd and rebounding and shooting of the duo of Phil DeLong and Johnny McGee, the Reindeer handed Cooter their second loss of the young season. In the game McGee led all scorers with 20 points, DeLong added 19. McGee also led all rebounders with 13. DeLong had 11.

Clarkton jumped to an early lead in the first period, 16-6. Cooter finally began scoring in the second quarter, but in doing so had to loosen their play on defense and were outscored 18-12 by the Reindeer. Halftime score was 34-18 Clarkton. The second half was much closer, but by then it was too late for Cooter to make any kind of run at the Reindeer. Cooter scored 14 in the third period to 13 for Clarkton and the score was 47-32 going into the final eight minutes. However, the Clarkton offense untracted itself and started moving away once again to make the final score 66-46, Clarkton.

The Reindeer completed a sweep of the night's action with a 45-7 victory over Cooter in the "B" game. That's not a misprint, Cooter was held to just 7 points in the entire game. Hayes led Clarkton scoring in the contest with 9 points.

Lions Roar Loud In Season Opener

SENATH -- Coach Jim Isbell's Lions roared off to a wild start in the 1971-72 basketball season with a convincing 104-59 win over Holcomb Friday night.

The Lions have four starters back from last years squad and look very impressive.

All conference forward Barry Harris had 31 points to lead the onslaught. 6-foot-4 junior Herman Brown had 18 points.

High man for Holcomb was Louis Sims with 13.

Holcomb stayed close in the first period as Senath-H'vile took a 28-21 point lead. The Lions roared out in front in the second quarter scoring 33 points to Holcomb's 14.

Holcomb could never get back on the right track as they could only score eight in the third period to the Lions 27. Each team hit 16 in the last period.

Senath-Hornersville took the junior varsity game 57-40 as Randy Harris hit 20 for the winners and Waggoner had 17 for Holcomb.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach; University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

As the second half of the Tulsa game begins, you, the Louisville quarterback, find the Golden Hurricane tackles are playing two feet off the scrimmage line. Scouting reports have indicated that, in this lineup, Tulsa will often stunt, with an end charging inside and a tackle looping behind him to the outside. What play should you call:

1. Off tackle slant?
2. Pitchout around end?
3. Reverse?
4. Quarterback sneak?

Answer

No. 4. Quarterback sneak hits quickly before end can get to play. Tackle takes himself out. Blockers get more momentun with defensive tackles off scrimmage line. Stunting could hurt slant, pitchout and reverse unless offense picks up blocks.

Bengals Claim North Title

PERRYVILLE -- Cape Girardeau Central high school claimed its third straight Northern Division football championship and added to its hopes of a state class 4-A playoff berth Friday night with a 10-6 decision over a pesky Perryville Pirate squad.

Coach Terry Smith's PHS playoff hopes were dimmed somewhat with the defeat, which was the Pirates first of the season to go along with eight wins and a tie.

Perryville's hopes of a victory ended with them on the five yard line of the Bengals.

Cape scored in the first quarter when Brad Shermar cracked over from five yards out to cape an 82 yard drive the first time the Bengals had the ball. Mike Lee's extra point kick was good and the Tigers were on their way to a 9-1 season record.

The Bengals made it 10-0 with 6:20 left tin the game when Lee split the uprights with a 22 yard field goal.

Perryville charged back moments later when Larry Blanford slipped in from one yard out to cap an 80 yard drive highlighted by a 64-yard offensive run by Mark Gotto.

Only fifteen yards separated the the teams statistically. Cape rushed for 249 yards and passed for nine while the Pirates grounded out 212 yards on the ground and 31 through the air. The Bengals held a 12-11 edge in first downs.

Both teams await word of a possible playoff berth and the naming of an opponent for next week's first of two playoff battles.

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start.

God is hope. God is now.

A message for believer and non-believer alike.
Your reader lives in a world of puzzling and often dispiriting contrasts. Headlines flagellate him with news of war, poverty, pollution, corruption, disease, dope and crime. If he is fortunate, he may counter these horrors by a perception of quiet family joys and occasional personal achievement. We would stimulate him to ask "Why?" to these cruel contrasts in his life. We humbly suggest that to his "Why?", God is the place to start. Whatever the religious impact, we hope you will agree that to ask the right questions is the beginning of knowledge.

We need your help to stimulate your reader to that interior reflection from which good action flows.

Man Meets P51—Again

George Valentine of Ashland, Ohio, is obviously a very happy man. Reason: Seeing again after 26 years a P51 fighter such as he flew on 22 missions over Nazi-occupied Europe during World War II. It wasn't his exact plane, but close enough to bring a rush of nostalgia. Valentine, now with the staff of Ashland College, was invited to get the feel of it again by the owner, an Air National Guard member. Bottom right, Valentine in the cockpit and, left, with his own P51 26 years ago.

TALENT IN ACTION,

impressive from the audience, can be even more so from an orchestra-eye view. Robert Shaw, of the world-famous Chorale and the Atlanta Symphony, is alternately intense, calm, quietly forceful and, finally, exhausted but fulfilled in conducting Judith Mendenhall, lower right, of Edina, Minn., and other students at Kent (Ohio) State University's Blossom Festival School in Hayden's "Creation."

A Compact Oxford Dictionary with Magnifier

THE COMPACT EDITION OF THE OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY. Oxford University Press. Two Volumes. $75.

This publication of the Oxford English Dictionary, the most prestigious in the English language and probably in the world, applies to a classic work the most innovative step in multivolume printing since Oxford itself developed the thin India-type paper some 100 years ago. And the result of this new method, which reduces the print of the original micrographically to a fourth of the original type size, is even more effective.

In a standard edition, the dictionary, which began publication in 1884, now extends to 13 volumes costing $300.

The new set, which a sharp eye can almost read, comes with a special magnifying glass grooved to slide along the edge of the binding during perusal. However, any good magnifying glass of reasonable size to which the reader is accustomed to using will serve.

Inconvenient? Unquestionably, in comparison with picking up a standard-size-type edition and reading it at leisure. Yet how many of us can afford to spend $300 for a dictionary in the home or find space conveniently to shelve it? Even big libraries are finding their space shrinking to the point that annexes are required for annexes to house the exploding volumes of reference works.

In a remarkable publisher's note, the Oxford Press expresses its indebtedness to the veteran publisher Albert Boni of Readex Microprint Corp., "whose compact editions of the British Museum Catalogue and other reference works pioneered this method of publication." Boni has been a distinguished American publisher for more than a generation; books carrying the imprint of his earlier house, Boni & Liveright, are now collectors' items.

Most of us who have been through high school and college are familiar with the concept of the Oxford dictionary. It traces, with examples, the changes in meaning which words constituting the English language have undergone from the beginning. There is a teasing thought as to whether Darwin's concept of evolution, still in its first blush when the dictionary was conceived well over a century ago, had any subconscious part in this conception.

What's The Law?

Employee Illness Not Fault Of Boss

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Larry's stomach was an infernal organ. He had ulcers that were so bad that it became extremely hazardous, according to his doctor, for him to even perform his usual work. Consequently, he appealed to his hard-hearted employer to lessen his tasks but his employer was a severe taskmaster and refused to do so.

The result? Larry passed out on the job and nearly kicked the bucket. Luckily, he missed it and, upon recovering, he sued his boss for damages for having worked him too hard.

"The man's an idiot," responded Larry's employer. "He can't sue me. If he was too sick to work, he should have quit his job. After all, I operate a factory, not a sanitarium."

"I couldn't afford to quit," was Larry's answer, " and he knew it. That's why he refused to lighten my work load. The fact is, he had me boxed in and I'm just fortunate that an undertaker didn't get to box me in also."

jI

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Larry's employer liable for being too severe a taskmaster under the circumstances?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an employee cannot hold an employer responsible for the consequences of his continuing to perform his regular duties contrary to his doctor's advice; that it's not an employer's problem if an employee has to worik to earn a living.

THE ADMISSION OF MISSOURI
By David D. March

One hundred fifty years ago, August 10, 1821, President James Monroe proclaimed that the admission of Missouri to the Union was complete. The proclamation was both issued and received with sighs of relief, for it had been preceded by a protracted quarrel so deeply divisive and at times so violent that the aged Thomas Jefferson was moved sadly to express his fear that the sacrifices of the men of 1776 were to be "thrown away by the unwise and unworthy passions of their sons ..." He had seen in the Missouri controversy the "knell of the Union."

It was on December 18, 1818, a little more than a month after the short session of the Fifteenth Congress had convened, that Henry Clay, of Kentucky, Speaker of the House of Representatives, laid before that body a memorial from the territorial legislature of Missouri praying for statehood. The memorial stated that the population of the territory was "little short of one hundred thousand souls," delineated proposed boundaries for the state, and expressed confidence that the Congress would act "from the spirit of a generous and enlightened policy" to give the people all the rights and privileges of citizens of the United States, to which they were justly entitled. Clay referred this petition, along with other pertinent documents, to a select committee.

Action pickd up when, on February 13, 1819, John Scott, of Ste. Genevieve, delegate from the Missouri Territory, sucessfully moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole to perfect bills which would authorize the people in the territories of Alabama and Missouri to form state governments. Almost immediately Representative James Tallmadge, Jr., from Poughkeepsie, New York, proposed an amendement to the Missouri bill which contained two clauses: (1) that "the further introduction of salvery or involuntary servitude be prohibited ..." and (2) that "all children of slaves, born within the said state, after the admission thereof into the Union, shall be free, but may be held to service until the age of twenty-five years."

The Committee of the Whole, after a short but intensive debate, approved the amendment by a vote of 79 to 67. Then the House itself approved the first clause 87 to 76, and the second by a very close vote of 82 to 78. The division on each was sectional, with Southerners almost unanimously against both clauses. They were joined by only ten congressmen from the free states in opposition to the first clause and by fourteen in their fight against the second. The Missouri bill, as amended, was ordered engrossed, 97 to 56, with eight Southerners voting in the affirmative and only six Northerners voting with the minority.

Because everyone knew that the slugging first baseman of the New York Yankees had been stricken by an illness that had shortened his brilliant career and would shorten his life, his farewell to baseball was an emotional experience to millions of fans as well as to Lou Gehrig himself. Stories about Gehrig and other great sports personalities of the past 100 years are among the writing treasures contained in one huge volume, A CENTURY OF SPORTS. Along with dozens of beautiful photographs, many of them in color, they make up the finest sports book of all time. First Bridge Contract Nearly Completed

CARUTHERSVILLE — Caruthersville residents have long dreamed of a bridge across the Mississippi River located near this community, and today this dream is slowly but surely becoming a reality as 66 per cent of the first contract is now complete.

Work on the new Caruthersville Bridge began with the construction of a gravel road through swampy, low bayou country across the levee near the river in early June, 1969. Actual bridge construction had already begun on the Tennessee bank of the mighty Mississippi, but on the Missouri side workers were kept busy building a road, cutting through wooded areas so that heavy equipment, supplies, and bridge materials could move back and forth to the bridge site.

Early work on road construction was hampered by high water and bad weather conditions as usual. Thousands of yards of fill had to be used to build the road which, due to high water, was in almost constant need of repair.

Not long after the road was made passable, local residents began to see signs of bridge work.

Massman - Juhnson, a Kansas City Construction Company, is working on the first contract which is the substructure contract of the main river spans: piers 14 through 26. The cost of this contract is approximately $7,700,000.00.

Total cost of the Caruthersville Bridge has been estimated at approximately $26,000,000.00, and the bridge is expected to be completed in late 1974 or early 1975.

The substructure contract, according to the Missouri State Highway Department's Resident Engineer W. A. Schenke, is the first of several contracts to be awarded, leading to the final completion of the 7,098 foot structure. Encompassed within this first contract is the construction of seven piers and six bents which comprise the supports for the main spans of the huge bridge.

In March, 1971, this contract was about 30 percent complete. Today, according to the resident engineer, the first contract is about 66 percent complete.

Asked if this progress is good or bad, Schenke replied, "All I can say is that we would like to have been a little futher along."

Construction of a pier requires much more work than the eyes of a river bank spectator can see. Each pier requires form 91 to 125 piles averaging 90 feet in length. After these piles are driven inside a cofferdam, a twenty foot thick course of seal concrete is placed through the water which allows the cofferdam to be dewatered and the pier built in the dry. The top of the seal concrete is approximately 35 feet below the average river level gauge reading of 13.2.

Piers 19, 20, and 21 are supported by caissons built on islands of sand constructed by the contractor and are lowered to their final position approximately 130 feet below the river by dredging out the sand below the pier concrete. This dredging is performed through 13 foot diameter holes in the pier base.

A breakdown of the estimated cost of the present contract indicates that of the total of $7,764,193.00, $6,104,741.00, or 80 percent is to provide for the construction of items which will be below the average elevation of the river.

The resident engineer stated that winter weather would probably not slow down progress this year.

Massman - Johnson have approximately 75 construction workers working on the bridge at the present time.

Recently the Highway Department announced that a November 24 bid call would include work on 109.8 miles of highways in the area. It was reported that on I—155 in Pemiscot County, a 1.2 mile grading project will be let for the Mississippi river bridge approach south of Caruthersville.

Schenke told The Democrat - Argus Tuesday that work would be done from the bridge to the levee. The road will be built up to a height of approximately 20 feet with thousands of tons of fill. Some local residents felt that, due to periodic high water, the section of I-155 from the bridge to the levee would be constructed above land.

After contract one is completed, about five other contracts will follow before pemiscot County residents will get to cross the river on the new Caruthersville Bridge.

Martin Carlisle, the bus driver, said a truck owned by Jim Thurmond and driven by a farmhand stopped suddenly in the road ahead of the bus and the bus struck the truck in the rear.

Egypt Asks UN Debate On Middle East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt has formally asked a U.N. General Assembly debate on the Middle East not later than Dec. 1, and demanded either a clear-cut Israeli commitment to withdraw from occupied Arab territory or the imposition of punitive measures against the Jewish state, an authoritative Cairo newspaper said today.

In Jerusalem, Deputy Premier Yigal Allon predicted that if another Middle East war erupted it would lead nowhere, and called on Egypt to begin negotiations to find a political solution to the crisis.

Mariner 9 Near Trip End

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Its quarter-billion -mile journey nearing an end, Mariner 9 is plunging toward a tiny "window" in the sky of Mars from which a burst of its engine is to drop the spacecraft into an orbit about the planet.

If the 15-minute firing of the retrorocket scheduled for 7:17 p.m. today is successful, Mariner 9 will become the first spacecraft to orbit another planet, apparently beating two Russian probes to Mars.

Council To Revise Insurance Law

MALDEN — The city council indicated Monday night that it will revise the ordinance governing hospitalization insurance for city employees and officers of the city. Mayor Sparrel Davis appointed a three - man committee, composed of Jame Corder, Bill Smithson and Mart Bostic, to study the ordinance and to make recommendations to the Council at their next meeting.

The Mayor's action came at the prodding of Councilman Phil Santie. Santie asked City Attorney Gordon Fritz whether or not elected city officials were eligible for the city - paid hospitalization insurance. Fritz said that in his opinion under the present ordinance that they are. However, he said that he didn't think that appointed officers were.

Several members of the Council said that this should be changed. Mayor Davis immediately named a committee to study the ordinance and make recommendations. He then passed on to other business.

The hospitalization insurance program is a liberal and costly one to the city. It includes Blue Cross, Blue Major, Blue Shield and other benefits. The cost per individual is $51.99 per quarter and for an individual with family coverage it is $138.12 per quarter. Under provisions of the existing ordinance the City of Malden must pay at least 50 percent and up to 100 percent of the individual's cost. The City is not to pay any of the dependents' portion. The cost per quarter is nearly $4,000.

Elected officials presently covered under the program are Mayor Davis, Chief of Police D. W. McMillian, Police Judge Ralph Stropp, City Collector Joann McCurter and Councilman Mart Bostic. Bostic says that he pays both his individual and family coverage. Stropp has only individual coverage. The others have both.

None of the other elected or appointed officials are listed.

In other business, John Howell appeared before the council to discuss the City's policy in regard to sending the fire truck on out of town calls.

Howell, one of the owners of Stokes Brothers Gin Company, said that a trash pile of cotton hulls caught fire on land just outside the southwest city limits of Malden. He said that he called the fire department and that the fire truck driver, Harley Ratliff, told him it would be a $25 fee. He agreed to the fee, but then Ratliff said he didn't have permission to take the fire to truck out of town. Howell said that he finally gave up and took his own crew of men out to control the fire as it threatened the building housing the KTCB radio transmitter.

Howell said that he had just about recovered from being angry Friday morning when he saw the fire truck at a grass fire near the Chez Paree Club beyond the north city limits. Howell said that he wanted to know the City's policy.

Mayor Davis said that he and Fire chief J. D. Wagster had already apologized to Mr. Howell and to Dick Wiethan. He said that he couldn't understand why Ratliff didn't respond to the fire call.

The Council said that their policy has always been to send the fire truck on out of town calls within a reasonable distance and that they would continue to do so.

Lou Withrow of Kansas City representing the National Weather Service appeared before the Council to seek approval to install weather information data equipment at the sewage disposal plant and to have city employees take daily readings. He said that the information is extremely valuable — especially to farmers in the area. Withrow said that Arthur McGill has been performing this service for years, but due to illness is no longer able. The Council gave its approval.

Mayor Davis reported to the Council that the Bootheel Law Enforcement Assistance Council has approved a grant of $660 to apply toward the purchase of new police uniforms for the City of Malden. He said that this represents 75 percent of the cost and that the other 25 percent will be paid for by individual members of the police force.

The matter of whether or not the Malden Compress should be taken into the city limits along with other proposed areas was discussed, but no action taken. City Attorney Gordon Fritz said that Attorney Flake McHaney wants to appear before the Council on behalf of the Compress. Fritz says that owners of the Compress claim that they have an agreement with the City of Malden made back in the thirties that they would never be taken into the city limits. The matter was more or less tabled.

A discussion was held in reference to taxing so called farm land within the city limits. It was brought out that a City Council has no authority to exempt any property from taxes. No action was taken.

Lloyd Garris was employed as a park maintenance man with his first year.s salary to be paid by the federal government.

Approval was given to Malden Furniture company to remove curbing along their store on West Main Street and blacktop the area for parking. However, the owners are to install either curbing or concrete blocks to prevent automobiles from parking on the sidewalk.

The Council approved a resolution granting the Board of Public Works permission to enter into an agreement with the federal government for the replacement of mercury seals with mechanical seals at the sewage disposal plant located on the Industrial Park. The cost is to be $13,000 on a 50-50 basis. The federal grant is being made under the Water Pollution Control Act.

A discussion was held in reference to parking too near corners on certain streets. The Council delayed any action until they could study the problem.

Change In Veterans Day Protested

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Resolutions protesting the change in the date of Veterans Day from Nov. 11 to Oct. 25 were adopted by elements of two veterans organizations in Missouri Thursday—the anniversary of the World War I armistice.

The 4th and 5th Districts of the Organized veterans of World War I adopted a resolution and another was approved by the American Legion 0th District in a meeting at University City.

Representatives of both groups said changing the date of the observance also changes the meaning of the day.

"Nothing happened on Oct. 25 except that it was designated as Veterans Day, whereas Nov. 11 has been observed for more than 50 years as the anniversary of the end of World War I," said Ernest G. Keefer of Roc Hill, deputy national chief of staff of the World War I veterans.

A. W. Scheetz, commander of District 11, criticized the action making Veterans Day part of a three-day weekend.

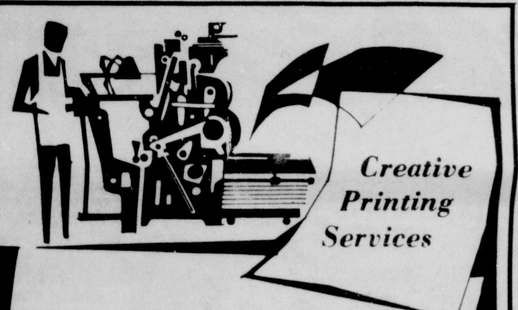

"Veterans Day isn't a holiday on which you're supposed to go out and enjoy yourself. It's a solemn occasion," he said.

Bert Casselman of Kansas City, Missouri Legion commander, had a similar comment.

"This is a day when we honor veterans. It lacks meaning when you set it on a holiday when people take off on a weekend for personal enjoyment," he said.

"It's a traditional thing," said Milton Hass of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7980. "The older veterans feel what little they have left is being taken away from them.

"Also," he added, "we don't feel we should be making any moore three-day weekends. Too many people are being killed on the highways on these flying weekend trips."

Wage And Price Freeze Gives Way To Phase Two

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wage and price freeze ends tonight, to be replaced by flexible guidelines that President Nixon says he hopes will cut inflation in half.

Official regulations were published in today's Federal Register, legally thawing the freeze.

But not before some last-minute exceptions were made late Friday by the President's Cost of Living Council:

—Life insurance premiums will be allowed to rise after today without federal controls, though not other types of insurance rates.

—Servicemen will get their scheduled 15-per-cent average pay raise Sunday, despite the general 5.5-per-cent guide for the rest of the economy.

—Other federal workers and persons earning less than the $1.60 hourly minimum wage also will be exempted from wage controls. However, the President already has postponed most federal pay raises.

—The auto industry may pay scheduled wage increases this month and next, and get price rises to match, without the advance approval otherwise required of wage agreements and businesses of that size.

The increases are subject to rollbacks if found to be excessive. Actually, the same exception will apply until Jan. 1 to all the biggest 500 wage agreements and the businesses they affect, but besides the United Auto Workers contract only a handful of smaller agreements call for any increases before then.

Ford, Chrysler and American Motors said even before the exemption was announced Friday that they would seek higher prices.

The Price Commission today detailed the procedure for wholesalers and retailers with more than $100 million in annual revenue to notify the commission of planned price increases.

A Price Commission form, PC-1R, will provide the request for an increase and this must be accompanied by a certificate that the percentages spelled out in the form will not be exceeded.

When the form and certificate are filed, the commission said, a retailer or wholesaler "may adjust his prices by applying those mark-ups to the cost of his merchandise. He may not use mark-up percentages that are higher than those in effect during his base period as defined in the regulations."

President Nixon conceded at a news conference that pent-up price increases might create a temporary "bulge" in the cost of living when freeze rules are eased. But he called the rulings of his Pay Board and Price Commission "very sound."

He said some businessmen would have preferred a lower wage guide of perhaps 3 or 4 per cent, but he said: "It would have been totally unrealistic. It would have broken the board wide open."

On prices, he said, "The guidelines that have been laid down would cut the rate of inflation approximately in half. That is real progress."

The general rule for prices is that they may go up to match rising costs, with a deduction or even a rollback for any increase in productivity.

Withdrawal Hike Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered a more-than-50-per-cent speedup in withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam, but says he may have to intensify bombing of Communist infiltration routes through Laos.

Nixon called newsmen to his office late Friday and announced that 45,000 more American servicemen will be pulled out in December and January.

This will drop the American troop presence in Vietnam to about 139,000, lowest in nearly 6½ years and more than 404,000 below the war peak.

Nixon linked the speedup to better-than-expected Vietnamese progress toward defending themselves. The South Vietnamese government said it was because of "the improved general security situation now prevailing in Vietnam."

A total of 25,000 men will be brought home in December— "to get a few more men out before Christmas," the President said—and another 20,000 in January.

This will boost the withdrawal rate to 22,500 a month from the 14,300-a-month average in effect since last spring.

Although Nixon had been expected to raise the pullout tempo, his decision to limit the next period to two months came as a surprise. Previous announcements have projected withdrawals as far as a year ahead.

Nixon said: "It is essential as we get closer to the end, if we are going to maintain any negotiating leverage, that the withdrawal periods ... be somewhat shorter."

This approach would enable Nixon to make a series of troop-withdrawal pronouncements during 1972, a presidential-election year.

On other matters, Ni bn told the news conference:

—The United States will continue to provide aid to Cambodia but no American troops will be committed.

—It is highly improbable that U.S.-Soviet negotiators will reach agreement on strategic arms limitations this year. But an agreement eventually will be reached, he said.

—He thinks the rate of inflation will be chopped in half next year. He praised his Pay Board and Price Commission for "very sound" decisions in setting guidelines for Phase 2 of his economic program.

—It would not be helpful to disclose the exact dates of his visits to Peking and Moscow or what will be discussed.

Nixon promised a further troop withdrawal announcement before Feb. 1, saying the number to be withdrawn and the duration of that pullout period will be determined by these three factors:

"First, by the level of enemy activity ... because if the level of enemy activity and infiltration substantially increases, it could be very dangerous to our sharply decreased forces in South Vietnam.

"Second, the progress of our training program, our Vietnamization program in South Vietnam and third, any progress that may have been made with regard to two major objectives we have, obtaining the release of all our POWs wherever they are in Southeast Asia and obtaining a cease-fire for all of Southeast Asia."

While restating that the ground combat role for U.S. troops is over, Nixon disappointed those who had hoped he would publicly declare a date for ending all U.S. combat operations, including air strikes, and for withdrawing all remaining troops.

The President asserted that the United States will continue to use its air power "in suppo t of the South Vietnamese until there is a negotiated settlement or, looking further down the road, until the South Vietnamese have developed the capability to handle the situation themselves."

While the United States has been pulling fighter bombers out of Vietnam, it maintains strong air units, including B52 bombers, in Thailand. This air power is thrown against the enemy's Ho Chi Minh supply trail running from North Vietnam through the Laotian panhandle.

"As we reduce the number of our forces, it is particularly important for us to continue our air strikes on the infiltration routes," Nixon said.

The infiltration rate is up somewhat but "it is not as high now ... as it was last year" at this time, Nixon said.

Senate Rejects Year Delay For Hike In Social Security Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected today 41-25 an attempt to delay for a year a $3-billion increase in Social Security taxes scheduled to take effect in 1972.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, DMinn., author of the amendment to the tax cut bill, said the Social Security increase will offset much of the tax reductions in the bill and thus nullify the economic stimulus desired.

For example, he said, a family of four with a $10,000 income would get an $80 tax cut from the bill but pay $62 more in Social Security taxes."

But Sen. Russell B. Long, DLa., chairman of the Finance Committee and floor manager for the bill, urged the Senate not to tamper with the Social Security system in the tax bill. He moved successfully to table and thus kill the amendment.

The Social Security tax rate, now 5. per cent each on the employer and employe, does not change in 1972 under present law.

But the wage base on which the tax is paid would be increased from $7,800 to $9,000. This will mean a tax boost of $62.40 in 1972 for all persons earning $9,000 or more.

During Friday's first day of floor debate on the $15.5-billion tax cut bill, the Senate handed the administration a series of defeats, chiefly by voting increased relief for individuals.

It adopted by a 40-37 margin an $800 personal income tax exemption effective next year in place of the $750 supported by the administration. The Senate planned to continue consideration of the bill today.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, RUtah, administration spokesman in the debate, said he figured the Senate added $2.9 billion to the cost of the measure in the one day, "and I suppose there is more to come."

Kirk Arrested On Weapons Charge

CAIRO — William Timothy Kirk, 25, of Sikeston was arrested last night on charges of unlawful use of weapons, resisting arrest, and failure to have a gun owners identification card.

The charges against Kirk, who is also charged with murder in Scott county, armed robbery in Butler county, and selling a stolen vehicle in Memphis, stemmed from an incident reported to police at 8:35 p.m. last night.

Police said they received a call from an unidentified person last night that a man had fired a pistol on the 200 block of 12th street.

When police arrived they found Kirk and a companion, 33-year-old Wanda Sue Garner, also of Sikeston, sitting in an automobile adjacent to a vending machine warehouse on 12th Street. The warehouse was reported to be owned by Vincent "Red" Doss, a well-known Cairo man.

The two were ordered from their car and police found a .22 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol under the driver's seat.

The woman was charged with disorderly conduct but Cairo police refused to comment on what led to the resisting charge on Kirk and the disorderly conduct charge of the woman.

Kirk and the woman are residents of the Rail Haven Motel on East Malone in Sikeston.

Kirk is charged with the July killing of James Allen Roose of Sikeston. Roose's body was found on the Ables Road, south of Miner. He had been shot four imes in the face. Roose also lived at the Rail Haven Motel.

In September, Kirk was charged in Memphis with attempting to sell a stolen vehicle there. The car, stolen from Kentucky, was reported to have been driven to Memphis by Kirk.

He is also charged with the armed robbery of a Poplar Bluff jeweler at his home in October. Kirk and a companion were accused of holding the jeweler and his wife at gunpoint, tying them, and stealing merchandise valued at more than $10,000.

Missouri Delta Community Hospital authorities alerted police last week when Kirk arrived at the hospital suffering from a gunshot wound in the leg and a stab wound in the abdomen.

Kirk refused to explain the wounds to hospital authorities and refused admittance to the hospital. He was questioned by police but would not disclose how he had been wounded.

He is free on bond on each of the charges pending against him.

Three Die In Road Mishaps

Two Chaffee residents were killed Friday night in a two-car collision in Chaffee. A single car mishap three miles south of Poplar Bluff resulted in the death of a Poplar Bluff boy.

The fatalities:

Leon Gluek, 50, Ruby McCarty, 45, both of Chaffee; and Larry W. Casey, 15, of Poplar Bluff.

In Chaffee at the junction of highway 77 and route EE at 11 p.m., a 1966 Chevrolet traveling east, driven by Glueck, did not stop at a stop sign, the highway patrol said, and ran into a northbound 1964 Oldsmobile driven by Edward Freeland, 16, of Sikeston.

Freeland sustained a fractured leg and possible chest injuries. William Young, 23, of Oran, a passenger in the Freeland car, suffered internal injuries and a fractured right arm and leg. Another passenger in the Oldsmobile, Lonnie Cook, 20, of Oran, had a fractured leg and face cuts.

The injured were taken to St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau.

The single fatality occurred on highway 42 near Poplar Bluff at 11:30 p.m. when a 1970 Mustang going south, driven by Edward Howard, 19, of Poplar Bluff, was going at excessive speed, the patrol said, ran off the road and overturned.

The driver sustained head and back injuries and was taken to Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The Chaffee residents were taken to Bisplinghoff Funeral Home in Chaffee. The Poplar Bluff boy was taken to Bruce Fitch funeral home in Poplar Bluff.

Search For Plane First CAP Drill

The Sikeston cadet squadron and senior civil air patrol unit began a two-day statewide defense exercise this morning.

Sikeston is serving as one of six statewide bases for the exercises. Other bases are Kirksville, St. Joseph, Joplin, Sedalia and Creve Coweu.

The unit received an alert at 11 a.m. that a B52 airplane was missing. The plane's last known contact was one mile south of Malden and it was headed to northwest Missouri to participate in a refueling operation.

Four planes from the Sikeston base were dispatched to search for the missing airliner. Forty-five members of the civil air patrol from as far north as St. Louis participated in this morning's exercise.

Air patrol spokesman C. F. Cline said the four search planes from Sikeston will search while the communications center, at the Sikeston airport, coordinates the mission.

Ground crews are on stand-by awaiting word from the search planes.

Each of the other bases throughout the state is being tested for a different type of emergency including nuclear accidents, flood and tornado drills.

The Sikeston base covers the area from Malden to Rolla.

Fire Damages Dairy Truck

A Turner Dairy truck was heavily damaged in a mid-day fire Friday when the carburetor apparently backfired. The truck was parked at the dairy on South Main.

Firemen were called to the Martin Oil Company on East Malone at 4:56 p.m. when a car owned by the Portageville Catholic parish was damaged by fire. The fire apparently resulted from an electrical short in car's wiring, but there was only minor damage.

Firemen were called to the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church where a grass fire was burning out of control. The fire was extinguished.

Superintendent Mum On School Secrecy

DEXTER (AP) — School Supt. T. S. Hill declined comment Friday on a comment by an assistant state attorney general apparently opening the way for reporters from the Sikeston Daily Standard to attend public meetings of the Dexter School Board.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Brook Bartlett, Commenting at the request of the newspaper, said he knew of no statute under which representatives of newspapers outside school districts could be barred from attending school board public meetings.

"As far as I know," Bartlett said "You are plowing new ground. It is good practice for school boards to hold all meetings in public and have everything above board." Hill, who has been Dexter superintendent 34 years, was quoted by the Daily Standard as having said last May that attendance at school board meetings by reporters of out of town newspapers violated school board policy.

Not allowed to attend the May meeting was Brenda MacDonald, Daily Standard correspondent who lived here. The vice president of the Daily Standard, Allen Blanton, said the newspaper plans to have a reporter at the board's Dec. 3 meeting.

Sikeston and Dexter are about 20 miles apart in Southeast Missouri.

CHINESE PUZZLE —
SIMPLE SOLUTION

Ping-pong, a recent athletic flash on the already flushed diplomatic scene, has been surpassed suddenly by frantic flashing of Chinese numbers game addicts. Any number can play, and indeed many do. It is rather like Alice's famous causus race: no rules; everybody does his own thing.

For example, who knows how many people live on the Chinese mainland? Figures that pop up from time to time range from 450-million to over 80-million. Even allowing for the vagaries of Red Guard head-counters, that's a difference of almost twice the population of the United States.

Then we come to the oft-mouthed line that there are 2-million "mainlanders" ruling 12-million "Taiwanians" (as one U.S. Senator so quaintly puts it). Now where all these "Taiwanians" sprung from if it was not from China is neatly ignored.

Ambassador James C. H. Shene, speaking recently before the National Press Club, pointed out the only native Taiwanese are the island's two hundred thousand aborigines, all the rest are Chinese. But the two million- twelve million games goes on, creating a false impression and phoney issue.

There are some numbers that tend to get ignored in the fast scoring. Like the 24 refugees who stumbled ashore on a single day recently after braving a five-mile swim across Deep Bay in Hong-Kong harbor. Or the fact that through June of this year almost 10,000 refugees poured out from behind the bamboo curtain -- that's doubling the rate of last year even after all the ping-pong smiles.

Even Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai got in the game the other day, offering a New York Times editorial writer the solution to our income-tax problems, Red Chinese style. Chou pities the plight of the poor Chinese who live on Taiwan and have to pay income tax. He says all would be rosy if Taiwan will just come back to Uncle Mao and Uncle Chou. They could be relieved of that hideous invention of the western capitalist world. Their problems would be solved like the rest of the Chinese people under the Red regime: they pay no income tax for one very simple reason — no income!

Zooming taxes appear to be crumbling the long standing Puritan ethic against legalized gambling.

Special state surveys conducted among independent business people in the nation's two biggest states, in size, welfare loads, in tax burdens, and in deficits, by the National Federation of Independent Business finds a majority now favoring state legalized gambling to reduce the tax bite.

Although New York already has a state operated lottery and horse betting establishments, the revelation an $8 billion state deficit has created an apparent desire for the state to turn even more to gambling rather than taxes.

Currently, 54 per cent say they favor "opening the state to legalized gambling such as Nevada now has to obtain additional revenue."

In hard pressed California, 64.8 per cent say "yes" to the question, "would you be in favor of State supervised lotteries to provide additional funds for the operation of state government to decrease taxes?"

In California, only betting at track pari-mutual windows is legal. "Bookies" are illegal, largely because they divert the action away from the tracks where the state gets a percentage of the betting take. In fact, some claim the state's crime rate is due to police facilities being engaged in cracking down on bookies instead of being concerned with violent types of crime.

For a long time, the independent business people of California located in the area of the race tracks raised protests against horse racing on the grounds that people spent their money at the tracks and failed to pay their bills.

Undoubtedly a great deal of this change of attitude is due to the fact that huge sums go from California to Nevada casinos only a bare four hours away by auto, and minutes by air. Whenever a bill is introduced into the California legislature to open some form of gambling in California, there is great concern in Nevada.

However, as all types of taxes are on the increase in California, the residents of that state are becoming more conscious that Nevada is operating without levying either a personal or corporate income tax, with a sales tax that cannot exceed 3½ per cent, no inheritance taxes, and a property tax that is limited by law to $5 per $100 dollars of assessed valuation. By contrast, in San Francisco, for example, the sales tax is 5 per cent, and the property tax almost $13, and there is a drive to enact a city income tax on top of the existing state income tax.

Despite the fact that Nevada has practically no tax income, with most revenues coming from legalized gambling, it ranks 18th among the states in tax revenues per thousand dollars of income. New York and California rank at the top of the list.

A typical comment comes from the owner of a California service firm who says, "Taxes are the largest drain on profits in small and large business. To give the government adequate money and still relieve the pressure on business tax, may I suggest a Federal lottery? It can be handled by the Treasury Department, and use a $1 bill as the ticket.

One-half to be sent in for the ticket and one-half as a receipt (both halves have a serial number for identification.) Take 50 per cent of the money for prizes of various sizes and 50 per cent for taxes and the small cost to conduct the lottery. Using $1 bills would: (1) avoid counterfeit; (2) no salesmen necessary; (3) no printing and cost of special tickets; (4) readily available to customers at all times. The prizes should be income tax free. The post office could sell special envelopes of correct size for one-half the $1 bill, stamped and pre-addressed for 10 cents and the ease of handling and extra cost would help make up the loss of money in the postal department.

"I truly believe the public at large would support such a lottery and it could develop a tax that could and should be used to give the business of the United States some relief."

The New Yorker is a snob magazine. I have been a reader for many years to see just how snobbish the ads are. Here are some examples, we are speaking about sculptures in glass:

Noah: Sculptured crystal-glass designed by Paul Schulze, 14" high, limited edition $8,500.00 each.

Wise Men: There will be no more, just 250 of the original works of art by Waterford, 10" vase, numbered and certified in writing $1,200.00 each.

Pioneer Scott: Limited edition of 200 porcelain, $1,000.00

Eleanor of Aquitaine: Retold in procelain by Cybis, limited edition of 750, 13½ inches high, $875.00

Now of course this is not all the ads in the magazine that sculputred glass or porcelain, there is some in there that sell for $53.00 and some for $100.00, but most of it you can see that the New Yorker is a magazine of the ultra rich. I guess that is what you would call them, who have something like this to talk about.

HOW TO BALANCE
THE BUDGET

We have been thinking of ways to induce President Nixon and members of Congress to stop running up huge federal deficits.

Mere words haven't even slowed the spending in Washington. The deficit last year was $23 billion. This year it is estimated it will be $27 billion.

There is too much apathy to organize another Boston Tea Party.

Besides it isn't considered good form or the ecological thing to do -- our harbors and rivers already being the recipients of too many other pollutants without adding huge amounts of tea.

Then the idea came to us from an editorial in the St. Louis Globe- Democrat. It was so simple and direct we were surprised that no one else had proposed it.

Here it is:

"Why not require the President and each member of the House and Senate to pay a one cent penalty for each million dollars that the federal budget goes into deficit each year.

"For example, if the federal deficit for 1972 does reach $27,000,000, the total penalty would be $2,700,000. This would be divided equally among all the members of Congress and the President.

"By our figures, the penalty for every member of the House and Senate and the President would be $5,037.31. Now that isn't a huge amount in relation to the $27,000,000 but if they each had to pay $5,037.31 at the end of the year for going this far in the red, we feel reasonably confident the budget would not only be balanced next year, but show a sizable surplus.

"There's only one hitch to this idea. It probably would have to be approved by Congress and President Nixon. It might be difficult to get their support."

ROLLING WITH THE PUNCH

During the four years since an electric power failure blacked out a large section of the eastern seaboard, work has been going steadily ahead to perfect interconnection of electric utility systems. Commenting on the eastern seaboard blackout in 1965, an electric industry analyst says, "The possibilities of a reoccurance have not been eliminated, but the chances of such an extensive blackout happening again are minuscule." Improvements in utility operations range from better relays and circuit breakers, computerization and closer supervision to construction programs increasing reserve capacity.

In laymen's language, interconnected utility systems appear to be developing a great capacity to "roll with the punch" when sudden load increases occur. THe analyst notes, "Since the major blackout three years ago, New York has had another power failure, but all anyone ever knew about it was a slight flickof the lights. Through the major interconnected grid system, when it became apparent that there was an overload, New York began drawing power from New Jersey which, in turn, began drawing power from someone else with power being ultimately supplied from as far west as Michigan."

What many people seem to fail to realize is that no one is more interested in bringing this country's vast electric power systems to the ultimate peak of reliability than the electric industry itself..especially the nearly 80 per cent of the industry that falls under public regulation as investor-owned, taxpaying enterprise. The rigidities of excessive federal control in the name of electric power reliability might well shatter the tradition of reliability which governs the operations of the investor-owned companies.

FROM TRAGEDY TO
BOON IN 50 YEARS

Metal from a British warship sent to the bottom in the second month of World War I is aiding scientists in the treatment of disease.

The heavy battle cruiser HMS Cressy was torpedoed on Sept. 22, 1914, about 25 miles off the Dutch coast. When a Hamburg scrap metal firm began salvaging the ship's six to eight inch thick plating a few years ago, 60 tons of the steel were snapped up by Hamburg University's physiological-chemical institute and used in the construction of Europe's most efficient human radioactive detector.

This metal that had been lying 20 fathoms deep in the sea for half a century was considered precious because it had been made before the atomic era. Steel manufactured since 1945 has been inevitably contaminated with radioactivity from atomic and nuclear bomb tests.

In a classic example of turning a sword into a plowshare, an average of 50 patients a day are now wheeled into the detector in the course of the institute's diagnostic and fundamental research program.

IN A GLASS HOUSE

The powerful AFL—CIO labor union has gone on record in favor of more federal regulation of the investor-owned utility industry. In endorsing an electric power reliability law, it proposes that the legislation be strengthened "to achieve the goal of lower-cost power to all consumers..." The powerful union also believes that government "yardsticks" are indispensable to reasonable electric rates. The nation's major labor union is in favor of virtual dictatorial control by government over one of the nation's most basic industries. Its advocacy of government control stops just one step short of outright socialization.. a curious position for a union that enjoys the greatest benefits of the capitalistic system to take.

So far as electric power reliability is concerned, it has become apparent that further federal control would have just the opposite effect. Needed power projects have been delayed time and again by the cumbersome mechanism of existing regulation. The electric power reliability measure now before Congress would simply be another step down the road toward paralyzing federal control. An official of a leading power company notes, "Clearly, this is a bill which deals with reliability of power supply only incidentally. Basically, it is a bill that provides for centralized federal management of the entire electric power industry in this country, both public and investor-owned."

The nation's labor unions, in asking for control of the electric industry, may find themselves in an exceedingly fragile glass house, since their own "reliability" leaves much to be desired. They have demonstrated a willingness to capriciously disrupt production lines in the most vital services. We should all remember that the principle of the right of private ownership and management of business is no less valid than the principle of the right of collective bargaining. Together, they are what we call the U. S. economic system.

TIME FOR A CRACK—DOWN

It seems to us that the time has come for a bit of shop talk in this space. It isn't pleasant, and some may think it unbecoming, that we should publicly criticize members of our own profession, but there is a responsibility for each of use to police his own trade, whenever possible. Those who work in a given field are usually better qualified to judge the actions of their fellow-tradesmen than an outsider.

Thus, a policeman knows when another officer is acting contrary to his oath, or orders; the AMA is the best judge of misconduct in the medical field, and the American Bar Association is a qualified body for reviewing possible misbehavior by members of the legal profession. Further, it is more often than not the case that the industry or profession which does some self=policing protects the innocent from the broad brush of adverse public opinion.

In recent months we have been more and more disturbed by the willingness of certain irresponsible news reporters to generate news, to instigate disorder, and to frustrate law enforcement. Police officers in various cities have insisted that biased reporting, particularly photographic reporting, has ignored provocations suffered by the police, but on the other hand featured police response with force.

In a number of cases it has been alleged that reporters and photographers have been contacted by persons or organizations bent upon breaking the law so that the incidents would be fully reported in the press. In these cases, cooperating newsmen refrained from alerting law-enforcement officers. In one city, a group of radicals invaded a Selective Service office and burned all of the 1-A draft records. Ample coverage of the "event" was provided by the news media, and photographs have been printed showing the actual burning of the records. These pictures were taken before the arrival of law officers on the scene.

It seems abundantly clear that the newsmen involved did not notify proper authorities that gross violations of the law of the land were in prospect. In our opinion that makes them accessories in violation of the law, and in violation of their professional trust.

Perhaps some prosecutions of irrensponsible newsmen will discourage such practices in the future. Newsmen who violate their trust endanger a free press.

DOWN, DOWN, DOWN

A late issue of the Wall Street Journal starts off an article on electric power rates with the observation, "electricity prices keep going down, down, down..and some buyers of power keep getting madder and madder." As the Journal points out, the average price per kilowatt hour of power supplied to residential customers was 2.16 cents in 1967, 2.37 cents five years before, and 3.22 cents just after World War II. Very few commodities or services can boast such a record at a time when most other costs have gone up, up, up.

In the light of a long record of declining rates, one could reasonably expect that the electric industry would be, as it well deserves, virtually immune to charges of overpricing, But, it seems, that no industry that provides such an elemental necessity as electricity to nearly every home and business in the land, regardless of its good record, can expect to escape the attention of critics who seek to make a political issue out of the price of its service.

What many of us do not realize is that our electric bills are bigger because electricity has become an all purpose servant. The modern home has everything from electric carving knives to electric heat, thus it is not surprising that power bills go up as rates decline.

The electric industry is currently investing nearly $6 billion annually in expanded generating, transmission and distribution systems just to keep up with growing power needs. The industry is faced with soaring costs just as is everyone else. If political and consumer pressure succeed in forcing rates below economically jusitified levels, investors cannot be expected to put up the money for continued expansion of the industry. The price of excessive rate cuts could be less electric power...and less electric power reliability.

We highly favor and support the petitions calling for the referendum seeking to place a penny tax per bottle on soft drinks for conservation purposes and have said so before. The comments printed here are from a letter written by Dan Bollow, Shelby County's Prosecuting Attorney. Bollow is highly respected by all of us, not only for his ability as an attorney, but also for his devotion to civic progress in his community of Shelbyville. Bollow made his comments concerning a letter written by Senator Maurice Schechter, who opposes the tax.

"The principal use of the additional revenue will provide expansion of existing programs of game law enforcement and rare wildlife distribution, but to meet a problem that has existed in Europe for centuries, and now first rears its head in America. With rapid urbanization more people are feeling the urge to escape to the country and be closer to nature. There is little public land in Missouri. The financially able have purchased land suitable for recreational use, and the increased demand has inflated the market value of such land, Those less fortunate have frequently become the uninvited, unwanted and oftentimes destructive guest of the farmer.

Although most government agencies do not act until crisis, the Commission, with unusual foresight, has planned a land purchase program, while acquisition costs are lower than can be expected in the future. The Commission plans to acquire by purchase or easement, rough, undeveloped land, not suited for agricultural or commercial purposes, for recreational use by all members of the public, whether they be hunter, hiker, fisherman, or nature lover. In Europe, hunting and fishing are enjoyed only by the wealthy elite. Plans, such as that proposed by the Conservation Federation, will prevent this from happening in America.

'Don't tax the kids' is the emotionally charged opposition cry, with the principal opponent the soft drink industry. However, I've noticed that the change my children spend on soda originally came from dad's pocket. I challenge Senator Schechter to find an age group with more concern for our environment than today's children. Indeed, they will be the beneficiaries of the programs planned by our Conservation Commission.——Shelbina Democrat.

NAME DESIGNERS TURN TO MEN'S WEAR——WHERE THE ACTION IS!——If you've been following the fashion pages of this paper, you must have gotten the idea that the current heightened interest in men's fashions has attracted many new designers into the field. Most of them came from the women's fashion field -- names the ladies know well. It reminds us of an old story -- of the little candy store operator who met John D. ROckefeller and said, "If I had as much money as you, I'd be richer than you. I'd have all that money...and my candy store too." And that's the status of the men's fashion industry now..it has all those women's designers, and THEIR OWN TOO!

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON: Whispers of a $100,000 bribe offer led to the Senate Commerce Committee's sudden, mysterious investigation of "allegations of impropriety" by El Paso Natural Gas Company.

We have been working for weeks on the story. The details are still in dispute However, here's why Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., began issuing subpoenas:

Two attorneys have sworn they were told by Utah's Democratic Chairman John Klas that he was offered a $100,000 interest-free deposit for his bank if he would agree not to testify against an El Paso bill. He turned down the offer and appeared against the bill.

The controversial legislation would nullify the Supreme Court's orders to El Paso to sell the old Pacific Northwest Pipeline Company. Magnuson has held up action on the bill, which he supports, until the alleged impropriety is cleared up.

El Paso, meanwhile, has called the bribe talk "an absolute, unmitigated lie."

We have established that Klas on October 21 arrived in Washington and joined attorney Beverly Moore, Jr., for a drink at the soigne Statler Hilton Hotel. Moore works for consumer crusader Ralph Nader, who is fighting the El Paso bill.

BRIBE STORY

The two men talked over Scotch while a chanteuse sang softly in the background. Moore said he had heard that an attorney, acting on behalf of El Paso, had sounded out Klas about the $100,000 deposit at a meeting in Salt Lake City. It was reputedly held at the exclusive Alta Club.

Klas is a vice president of Salt Lake City's Continental Bank of Trust. As Moore heard the story, the El Paso lawyer had offered to deposit $100,000, interest free, in the bank if Klas would call off his appearance before the Senate. The huge deposit would be worth up to $10,000 a year in loan income for Continental. The offer was made, Moore understood, in front of another Continental Bank executive.

As Moore recited what he had heard, Klas nodded affirmation. Moore took this as acknowledgment that the bribe story was true. Nevertheless, Klas said he had no intention of testifying about any bribe offer.

"Why not?" demanded Moore. He asked whether Klas feared economic reprisals.

"Not really," replied Klas.

"What is it them?" asked Moore.

"Of course, they (El Paso) would deny it," said Klas, "and I am worried about my credibility on cross examination."

"Are you sure in your own mind this offer was seriously made?" Moore pressed.

Klas' spontaneous reply, as Moore recalls it, was: "Oh, absolutely. There is no doubt in my mind at all. In fact, there was another bank official with me at the time, and we both came away with exactly the same impression."

ANOTHER ENCOUNTER

Next morning, Klas showed up at the Senate Commerce Committee to testify against the El Paso bill. He had an unexpected encounter with Bill Bennett, a fiesty California official who has fought El Paso for years.

Bennett introduced himself in the corridor outside the committee room.

"I've heard the story about the $100,000 offer to your bank," said Bennett. "Are you going to tell them about it?"

"No," replied Klas. "It was made in such a way that it could have been interpreted as a jest."

"You've got an obligation to testify," urged Bennett.

"No, replied Klas.

"If I get up and tell about it, will you back me up?" pressed Bennett.

The Utahn again said, "No."

"Why not?" pleaded Benne "It would hurt the bank," said Klas.

Both Bennett and Moore are ready to repeat these conversations under oath before the Senate Commerce Committee. Chairman Magnuson, meanwhile, has subpoenaed Klas, attorney Dan Berman, who has represented El Paso, and Continental Bank vice President Larry Higgins.

We questioned Klas who would tell us only: "I am really....in a box." Berman and Higgins declined to return cur repeated calls. When we asked Continental's president K.J. Sullivan about the $100,000 offer, he spluttered that we were asking about the bank's confidential business. "I am going to hang up," he announced. And he did.

Footnote: It was a bribe offer that defeated another natural gas bill back in 1956. The late Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., reported to the Senate that he had been offered a brown paper sack stuffed with $2,500 in hundred-dollar bills. He identified the bagman as John Neff, who had been authorized to make "certain expenditures" by his boss, Superior Oil lobbyist Elmer Patman.

Market Prices Noted Before Decision Made

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chances are this little piggie went to market and another little piggie stayed hom because the owners of both little piggies spent some time deciding whether to sell any little piggies today.

In each case, te farmer who made the decision on whether to sell or wait until another day probably checked the previous day's prices and at least two separate markets.

Those prices are compiled continually by the market news division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

These market reports are then relayed by the Associated Press to its member newspapers and broadcasters to allow local livestock producers to estimate whether it is a good time to take their animals to market and if so perhaps which market would be best.

The individual livestock producer most likely will check the prices at one of the 11 major terminal markets — probably whichever is closest to him. In Iowa this mean Omaha, Sioux City, South St. Paul, Joeliet, Kansas City or National Stockyards at East St. Louis, Ill.

He will also check the interior market — the Iowa-southern Minnesota direct market. The interior market includes the range of prices being paid for livestock purchased at the farm or at the packing plant itself.

"He must decide whether to sell close to the farm or whether he is ahead to take his livestock to the packing plant — it costs money to get to that point," said Daryl Vanderflugt, the officer in charge of the Des Moines Market News office.

At the same time, the livestock farmer must decide whether or not he would make a larger profit by taking his animals to the nearest large terminal market and selling them there.

"Most livestock in Iowa is sold direct," Vanderflugt said.

But even the farmer who always sells his animals near his home still checks the terminal market prices. Those who sell at the terminals check the interior market prices.

"The direct trade is possibly established in relation to the terminal marke for any one particular day," Vanderflugt said. "But the trade at the terminal market the following day is strongly contigent on the direct trade of the previous day."

Vanderflugt says the first prices established each day are those at the terminal market, which depend much on supply and demand. In turn, prices at the terminal market and the number of livestock received there influence the prices paid at the interior market.

"If they have 50,000 hogs at the terminal, it's likely the interior will move 75,000 to 90,000 that same day," Vanderflugt said. "If 90,000 to 100,000 are moved in the terminals, it's likely the next day will be a light market. It tends to reduce the demand."

"Our first report here is at 9:50 a.m., usually including 80 per cent of the hogs," Reese said.

November Will Be Warm Month

By LEONARD F. HAND
Farm Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE — The average monthly weather outlook for November maintains the trend for above normal temperature averages over Southeast Missouri. The Bootheel region is near the boundary line which separates areas expected to receive near and above normal precipitation.

The pattern anticipates that the bulk of cold air will remain concentrated over the western states, while warm conditions predominate in the east. Even a slight shift of this pattern, which was notable during the latter half of October, could bring the Bootheel within range of showers which develop as lows move out of the Rockies through the Plains and Mississippi Valley.

The Bootheel was unusually well shielded from these rains in October. Reports from Poplar Bluff show a total rainfall of 0.61 inch for the month, while the Portageville total was 1.36 inches. Most of the shower which moved regularly through the state with cold fronts passed northward out of range before reaching the southeast corner of the state.

The rain pattern for this month is not clear - cut, and each storm will have to be assessed individually for its potential for wetting. Weather so far this season has been excellent for getting the crop out. Continued favorable conditions through mid - November will see the bulk of the cotton, and a major portion of soybeans harvested.

Prospects for above normal temperature improve chances for wheat planted behind the harvest to get a good start. Soil moisture is mostly on the low side, ranging from sufficient to sustain early planted small grain and cover crops to conditions too dry to germinate seed. Improved chance for rain may even out this situation during the period. The warm trend may encourage farmers to plant cover on some of the lighter soils to minimize effects winds early next season.

Data prepared by Dr. Wayne Decker, Chairman of the Atmospheric Science Department, University of Missouri, shows the following in regard to normal freeze dates for the Bootheel:

Light Freeze (28 to 32)- North, Oct. 25, South Nov. 4.

Moderate (24 to 28) - Oct. 30, Nov. 20.

Hard (less than 24) - Nov. 14, Nov. 29.

Normal rain for the Bootheel as a whole in November is 3.89 inches.

Normals for individual cities are: Cape Girardeau 3.61 inches, Dexter 3.87 inches, Morehouse 4.06 inches, New Madrid 4.28 inches, Poplar Bluff 3.73 inches, Caruthersville 3.87 inches, Doniphan 3.81 inches, Fisk 3.78 inches, Parma 4.16 inches and Sikeston 4.18 inches.

Short term averages for other cities: Advance 3.66 inches, Bloomfield 4.27 inches, Clearwater Dam 4.04 inches, Kennett 4.31 inches, Portageville 4.27 inches, Qulin 4.46 inches, Zalma 3.85 inches, Bernie 4.67 inches, Charleston 4.46 inches, Deering 3.30 inches, Malden 3.60 inches, Puxico 4.17 inches and Wappapello Dam 3.85 inches.

Long term records show that in Novembers with above normal rainfall averages have been 5.71 inches at Poplar Bluff, 5.95 inches at Sikeston, and 6.34 inches at Caruthersville. Ranges of precipitation were 4.08 to 9.01 inches at Poplar Bluff, 4.15 to 15.04 at Sikeston, and 4.08 to 12.00 inches at Caruthersville.

Long term records show that Novembers with near normal rainfall have produced averages of 3.00 inches at Poplar Bluff, 2.81 inches at Sikeston, and 3.16 inches at Caruthersville. Ranges in those years were from 1.22 and from 2.25 to 3.85 inches at Caruthersville.

Cotton Prices Steady And Demand Brisk

HAYTI — Activity on Missouri cotton markets remained at a brisk pace last week according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's classing office. Demand was strong for all qualities and prices were steady. Growers offered cotton freely and sold a large volume at prices ranging from 700 to 800 points above CCC loan rates for mixed lots of Strict Low Middling and lower grades sold in mixed lots 900 to 950 points above the loan. Ginyard prices for cottonseed remained steady at an average of $54 per ton.

Harvesting entered the final stages at a brisk pace. Weather conditions were ideal and farmers kept most ginyards filled up with trailer loads of seed cotton. Good to excellent yeilds were reported at most locations.

The Consumer and Marketing Service's Hayti Classing Office classed 37,000 samples for farmers last week. This brings the total samples classed for the season through November 5 to 273,000. Strict Low Middling was the predominant grade on samples classed last week accounting for 64% compared to 55% the week before. Strict Low Middling Light Spotted accounted for the next highest percentage at 17% compared to 21% a week earlier. Forty - seven percent of the samples had staples of 1 3/32 inches compared to 79% the preceeding week. The amount of samples stapling 1 1/16 inches increased from 11% to 30% last week. Ninety - four percent of the samples miked in the 3.5 to 4.9 category. Breaking strength averaged 81,000 pounds per square inch on the samples tested.

Ann Landers

Wedding Gifts Sent To Church Cause Problem

Dear Ann Landers: "Dynamite Lil" sounds as if she has met my husband. I would welcome a visit from her. I would be happy to tell her what to expect from this "cultured, exciting man." I wish someone had told me.

He does not eat with his family because I have refused to bring meals on a tray in front of the TV, to his bed, or to the garage if he happens to be working on the car.

I may be a bore but I'm not a slob. Although I haven't bought a stitch of clothes in six years I sew well and I always look presentable. He's right, however, when he says I have turned my back on his family. I should have done so earlier -- before his brother borrowed my car and smashed it up, before his sister "borrowed" our home to give a party. (Our silverware was stolen, the rugs were ruined and cigaret holes were burned on our grand piano.)

So, Lil, please keep trying to pin him down. I'd gladly givehim a divorce so he could marry you. Call if I can help, I'm sick of the bum. ——Also Stuck.

Dear Also: If Lil calls, let me know. After all, remember I brought you together!

Dear Ann Landers: Customs DO change, and I hope you will print this letter and help change an age-old custom -- bringing wedding gifts personally to the church or to the reception.

This is what usually happens: The well-meaning guest must hand the wedding gift to a relative because the bride is busy in the receiving line. After the reception or dinner the bride and groom leave for the honeymoon and the gift is placed in the custody of the bride's mother. (There was no time to open it.) The bride's mother must then take the gift home and give it to the couple when they return. When the bride and groom come back from the honeymoon there are a hundred things to do. The bride's mother has to bring the gifts from her place to the bride's.

So please, Ann, tell your readers to send gifts to the bride before the wedding. It's much easier. — Sacramento Reader.

Dear Sac: Your letter makes a lot of sense. I hope it makes a dent.

Dear Ann Landers: Since bicycling has become so popular I thought I should write a letter and tell you a couple of things the average cyclist does not know -- and it could kill him.

This may sound ridiculously elementary, but it's shocking how many cyclists don't realize they should ride WITH the traffic, and not against it in the opposite direction. The motorist who sees an object coming toward him will automatically swerve and he might hit an oncoming car.

Another problem is the driver who honks his horn at a cyclist who is ahead of him. It can be frightening. It can also cause the cyclist to turn around to see who or what is behind him, and he might hit a patch of sand, or a hole.

If I prevented just one accident by writing this letter, it was worth the time and effort. Thank You. ——Connecticut Wheels

Dear Wheels: Thanks for taking the time. It WAS worth it.

SERVING THE STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF
OF SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL SINCE 1936.

Students Make Last Trip To Menard

Sociology classes, instructed by Mrs. Catherine Matthews and Bob Depro, made field trips to Menard State Penitentiary at Chester, Ill., October 27-28, under supervision of Mr. Depro.

Because of increasing unrest in the prison, the officials are ceasing all high school tours through the prison.

Two groups went to the prison, the juniors on the 27th and the seniors on the 28th.

This reporter had the opportunity to attend the tour with the senior group.

Upon arriving at the prison, the seniors were taken into a reception area where they were searched for any metal objects or chewing gum. They went one at a time through an electric eye into the main yard.

First of the activities on the tour was a panel discussion with six prisoners; two murderers, two armed robbers, and two men convicted of drug violations.

The students and prisoners talked about a variety of topics ranging from prison conditions and homosexuality to racism and drugs. Most of the prisoners tried to impress upon the students that prison was a breeding ground of all kinds of crime and perversion.

After this discussion, the students were taken to the prison chapel which serves the general Protestants, the Catholics, the Jewish inmates, and most of the other religious orders in the prison.

Seniors were then taken through a prison factory where underclothes are made.

Finally the most shocking experience of the trip came when the group was taken into the execution room with the electric chair. Those seniors who were interested were allowed to sit in the electric chair as the guard explained the procedure for execution.

Returning to the main office the group was again searched and "released" to board the buses for the trip home.

SENIORS! ONLY 12 DAYS REMAIN for you to turn your glossy print in for the yearbook. If studio pictures are not turned in to the journalism department by Monday, Nov. 22, school picture will be used.

GROWLER SALES will end Monday, Nov. 22. This is only 10 days away. Students are urged to purchase their yearbooks as soon as possible. Growlers may be purchased from any member of the journalism staff.

In her spare time, mystery baby enjoys participatingg in Red Peppers and intramurals.

Miss X resides at 813 Howard Drive with her parents and an older brother.

Do you know her?

Last week's mystery baby was Sheryl Baker.

Seniors Begin Magazine Sale

Seniors began magazine sales last Wednesday at a meeting during second hour.

A representative of the Perfect School Plan, explained the sales to the seniors. He passed out subscription forms and booklets that list the magazines for sale.

The representative told the seniors that approximately 40 per cent of the money collected by the class will be profit. Purchases of magazines will benefit the seniors by helping them to learn about American enterprise. Earnings from this activity will help pay for the trip planned by the seniors at the end of the year.

Each sale from either a special offer of two magazines for $6.50 or of a TV Guide will earn for the senior a small stuffed animal. Seniors who sell a certain number of magazine subscriptions are eligible for a prize.

A special prize of a trip to New Orleans and the Super Bowl will be awarded to 13 students, not necessarily from Sikeston. Completed subscription order blanks for Life magazine serve as entries in the contest. The student may enter as many times as he sells Life subscriptions.

Approximately 160 magazines and 13 books are available for sale. The senior class of 1972 would appreciate support by the student body.

Senior Candy Sale, Success

So far this year, Sikeston senior's campaign is to raise money for the senior party at the end of this year. The candy bar sale has been successful an hopefully much money will be added to the amount raised at the rodeo this summer.

All 375 boxes of candy bars have been distributed to seniors and almost all have been sold. approximately 200 seniors are participating in the campaign with many seniors showing remarkable skill in salesmanship as they try to sell their boxes in order to get more.

No deadline as such has been set for the completion of sales, although it is hoped that seniors will return money collected as soon as possible.

Depro Holds State Office Of Teachers

Bob Depro, geograpny instructor in Sikeston high school, was elected Secretary - Treasurer of the Missouri Council for Geographic Education at the Missouri State Teachers Convention in St. Louis last week.

This council is a group made up of high school and college teachers who teach geography.

"More people are becoming involved in this program because the Missouri Department of Education requires geography in all high schools," said Mr. Depro.

Sikeston was the first locality in Missouri to require a full - year course in geography. An elective semester course is also offered the second year.

Other officers on the council are Dr. Alfred Robertson, president, from Southeast Missouri State College, and Dr. Russel Gerlach, vice president, from Southwest Missouri State College.

Mr. Depro was nominated for the office by Dr. Robertson, one of his college instructors.

Bands Perform Final Show For Season

Sikeston high school marching band, directed by Ron williams, will present its final show of the season tonight at half - time when Sikeston meets Maplewood in a non-conference battle.

The band will come down the field in four company fronts to the tune of "Robert E. Lee." Sikeston high school marching band will form a diamond and go directly into the shape of a plus. The band will form a jug and play "Mountain Dew."

Following this, the Bulldog band will go back to the plus and play "Marching Halleloo." During the tune, they will do precision drills using the hotdog and pinwheel patterns.

Sikeston high school marching band will do its finale drill toward the stadium and will exit the field playing "The Red and the Black."

Mr. Williams commented, "I believe that the band has made a tremendous improvement this year mainly because of spirit and pride in the senior class members. This was their last year and they wanted it to be a fine band.

"They did considerable planning to make sure that this year would be a success. The merit system has been very important and has made members strive toward perfection.

"I think that we had a great marching season and I'm looking forward to as much success in the coming concert season."

Freshman band will make its final presentation of the season at the pre - game show tonight at 7 on the stadium field. Freshman band is directed by Pat Curry and will be led on the field by drum majorette Nancy Harper.

Freshman band will go down the field in a "diagonal -daze" formation. Instead of being in four company fronts, a block - buster formation will be formed. Band will go directly into concert formation and play "Hawaii Five-O."

Twirlers on the line are Sharon Henley, Lisa Cox, Beverly Morphis, and head majorette Sherrie Mitchell.

After the concert number, freshman band will do a drill to "Victor's March" and then play "Tea For Two." "The Star Spangled Banner" will be played as the band stands in place.

The freshman band will execute a "floating diamond" drill to the tune of "Days of Glory." After the tune, the fanfare "Invocation of Alberich" will be played, and this will conclude their show. Traditionally, the band will exit the field playing the school song, "The Red and the Black."

Mr. Curry commented, "The success of the freshman band this year has been because of the attitutde of the kids. They've worked so hard, and I think they have come a long way."

Music at the homecoming dance was provided by "Slow Gold" and "Limbaugh, McClellan, and Moore", two local groups.

The homecoming dance was from 8:30 to 11 p.m. Saturday night. The crowning took place at approximately 10 p.m.

Immediately following the crowning, queen Christie and her escort danced to the traditional queen's waltz. Attendants Penny and Mary Lynn with their escorts joined the couple.

Cafetorium was decorated by members of the sophomore class. Sophomores were also in charge of the crowning, providing the music, and cleaning up after the dance.

Outstanding displays of decorations at school Friday were provided by senior Red Peppers. Senior Sharon Scherer was chairman of the Red Peppers for the decorations.

Decorations included Bulldogs, murals, victory signs, streamers in the traditional colors, the recognition of all football players in the quadrangle, and giant replicas of both a doghouse and football

At half - time of the Sikeston - Jackson football game Friday night, the three candidates were introduced and escorted across the football field to music provided by the high school marching band. The band was in SHS block formation.

Christie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Swann, 309 Kramer Drive. As a senior, she participates in many school activities. She is a member of Red Peppers, Foreign Language Club, Concert Choir VI, and intramurals. In her spare time, Christie's favorite hobby is art.

The presentation was made by John Leible, president of the sophomore class.

Peppy Peppers, Bum Chosen At PB Game

by Linda Spitzmiller

Chosen as peppy Peppers for the Poplar Bluff game were Vikki Harris, Patti Dye, Jeannie Britt, Diane White, and Lynne Lacefield.

These girls are to be commended for going to Poplar Bluff during the teachers meeting weekend.

Vikki Harris' undaunted spirit helped lead the Bulldogs to a victory over the Poplar Bluff Mules. She was sitting on the first row, and her cheers carried to the field.

Junior voice heard above the rest was that of Patti Dye. Her spirit was not dampened by the cold weather? If anything, it was increased.

Jeannie Britt was an avid enthusiast Friday night. Her spirit was not excelled by any other sophomore at the game.

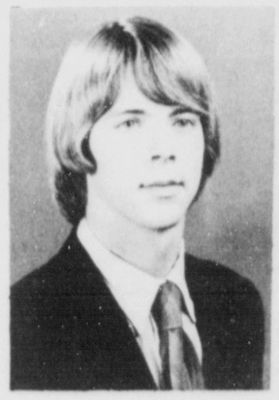

Freshmen redeemd themselves at the Poplar Bluff game by having two Peppy Peppers. These two enthusiastic girls were Diane White and Lynne Lacefield. It was too difficult to choose between the two, and they were both selected.

Bleacher Bum spirit committee chose only one loud- mouth bum. The fact that sophomore Rick Love is on the football team may account for his outstanding enthusiasm.

Education, Friendship Come In Many Ways

DURING our high school years we sometimes find ourselves belonging to various cliques, doing practically everything with the same people, and not reaching for the other people outside of the circle of friends we gather around us.

We somehow forget that there are other interesting people besides our four or five best friends.

Certainly every individual has something worthwhile to offer to any individual that will take the time to listen. It is amazing how much one can learn if he only listens to the voices around him. Of course, friends ultimately influence a person more than a casual acquaintance but the education received from outside is also valuable in its own place.

One mistake many people make when conversing with others is that they compare their vaues and habits with those of the person with whom their speaking and judging them accordingly. We shouldn't compare his or her life to our own or anyone else's, we should take it for what it is. We should also concentrate on being ourselves totally, playing roles should be left for actors, not responsible human beings.

What it all adds up to is coming out of our shells, our roles, or whatever games we might be playing, and taking a different look at the others around us. All it takes is the will to learn, the patience to listen, and the interest in making the world a friendlier place to live.

When we were younger, our mothers told us not to speak to strangers. However, now that we are older perhaps a reverse in policy would be a change for the better. Meet new people, talk to the ones that you already know, find out how they feel and what they are concerned about.

Surely this type of attitude in our schools alone would not only promote friendship and understanding, but it would also create an atmosphere in which education would come not only in the classrooms but also in the hallways.

Glen resides at 1216 Sikes with his family.

Cupid's Couple

Barker staff presents the first edition this year of Cupid's Couple. As in past years the object of this column is to try to guess the names of a couple on SHS campus.

Cupid's first couple this year falls on two members of the great class of '72.

Miss X and Mr. X have been keeping steady company for one year. They start off their school day together in 7:30 marching band, and end it together in concert choir VII.

Miss X is five feet two inches tall. She has brown hair and brown eyes. Her younger sister is a junior and is taller than Miss X. She also has a brother in high school who is a freshman.

Mr. X stands six inches taller than Miss X. He has blonde hair and brown eyes. Mr. X has a brother who is a freshman and he is taller than he also! Mr. X accompanies the choir often with his electric guitar.

Can you guess who they are?

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start.

God is hope. God is now.

Time Moves Swiftly; Don't Live In Past

WHEN ONE STOPS AND LOOKS at his past years and sees how swiftly time has moved, he realizes that everything that he has done is behind him and he cannot but wish that he could have some of those years to live again.

He looks back and sees his past mistakes and wishes he could correct them, and he realizes that he cannot.

With each passing day maturity gets a step closer for young people and the simple things of life get complicated and the accomplished goals of life get simple.

A time comes in each person's life when he has to make a decision.

This decision could change his whole life. When a person has reached this point in life, he must look ahead and see what lies in store — not only for him, but for others close to him.

One should always consider the well being of others as well as the well being of himself.

When a person reaches that point in life where he has to decide what he will do, he should do what he thinks is right. If he finds out too late that he has done the wrong thing, he should retrace his steps and start over because it is never too late for anything.

Life has its bad things as well as good, and a person should never give up, he should do the very best he can.

SHS Bulldogs Finish Strong

The Sikeston Bulldogs finished their football season on a high note with a 14-7 victory over the Maplewood-Richmond Heights Blue Devils at Public School Stadium last night. Sikeston by virtue of the win, ran their record to 6-4, taking five of their last six points.

Sikeston dominated the game much more than the score would indicate. Several different times the Bulldogs were inside the 20 only to have an interception stop them. The Blue Devils picked off six SHS aerials. Maplewood finished the season at 2-7, but they played many very tough teams in the St. Louis area to a standstill, losing just 3-0 to Lindbergh.

Sikeston opened scoring in the game when quarterback Bill Colwick ran off left guard from a yard away to score. When Larry Voliva added the extra point, Sikeston led 7-0. It was alead which Sikeston held very few seconds, as senior quarterback Dennis Goggins, a deep back on the kickoff team for Maplewood returned the ensuing kickoff 88 yards for the score. When the extra point was added the score stood at 7-7 and that's exactly where it remained for the next 2½ quarters. Sikeston mounted drive after drive, but the interceptions kept killing them. Finally, with just over three and a half minutes to go Colwick hit Glenn Guttenfelder, who made a sliding catch to get the ball on the one yard line. Colwick then scored his second T-D of the night. Voliva's extra point made the score 14-7 Sikeston and that's how it ended.

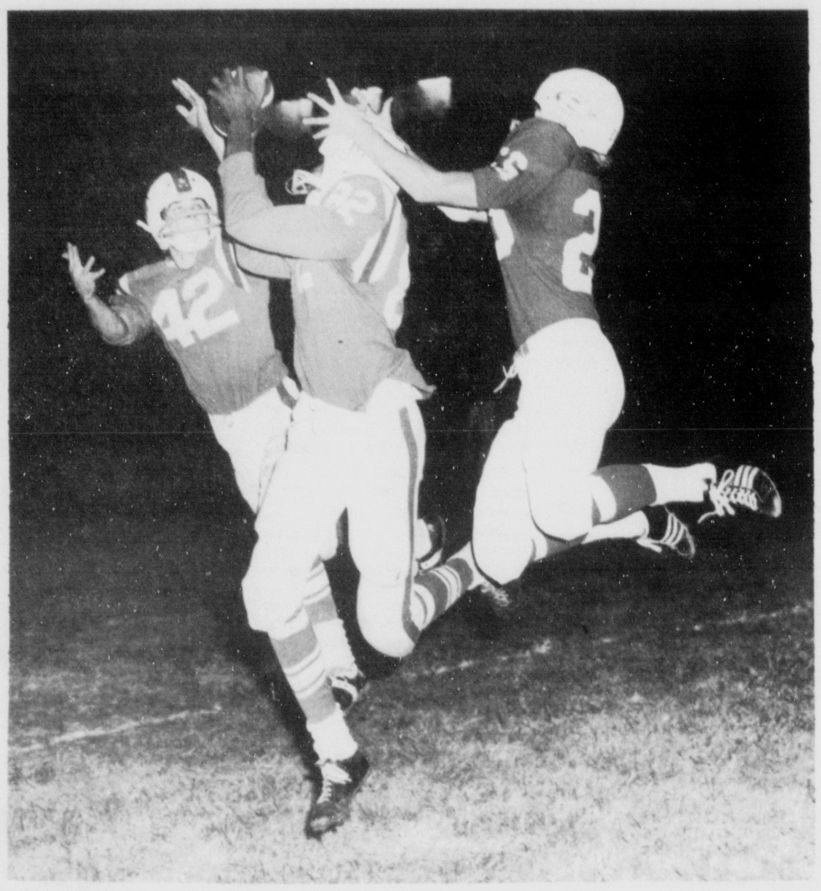

Individually there were many stars for the Bulldogs. One was tight end Steve Ferrell who extended his school record by catching eight passes for 98 yards, giving him 42 receptions on the years. Coach Bill Priday lauded the defensive platoon for a fine defensive effort, as Maplewood gained on 83 yards total offense. The Coach also said his team moved the ball well on offense, but they were very definitely hurt by the interceptions.

Seniors Bo Ralph, Brian Montgomery and Chester Yarber, to only mention a few, played key roles in the victory. Montgomery and Yarber running the ball on offense against the big bruising Blue Devils and Ralph opening up holes in the line on offense and pluging them on defense.

It was the final game of the year for eighteen Bulldogs. The team this year was not the best in Sikeston history, but the squad showed as much or more effort and energy than any team of recent years. Early in the season Coach Priday said that his team might get beaten, but he thought they would never quit. The team showed much promise by winning its last three contests and five of its last six. Several key performers will return next year and the Dogs will rate much closer look than they got this season when preseason pickings start. Bolstered by the cheering of the bleacher Bums and Red Peppers as well as the cheerleaders, the Bulldog team gave their faithful fans a chance to do something they didn't get to do last season. Ring the Victory Bell! The Dogs won only one of nine games.

Blocked Punt Saves PHS Win

HAYTI – Coach Jerry Cecil's Indians almost pulled a big upset but a 10 yard field goal attempt was partially blocked with 18 seconds left on the clock to give the highly favored Portageville Bulldogs a 7-6 southern division football victory here Friday night. The win kept the dogs in the Southern title picture and maintained their playoff hopes.

Everyone says that in a rivalry between two teams the records don't mean anything and this held true as Hayti battled Portageville down to the final gun.

Both teams made numerous turnovers to halt scoring drives. Fumbles and intercepted passes kept the score from going higher.

Hayti put together a 70 yard drive in the second period to go ahead in the game 6-0.

Robert Thompson, a speedy halfback ran eight yards for the only touchdown that the Indians could muster. The extra point try was no good and as a result Hayti went down to defeat by the one point margin.

The Portageville Bulldog defense that has been somewhat overshadowed by their potent offense held the Indians when they were threatening to win the game.

With the score 6-0 in the third period, Portageville put together a 70 yard drive that Chris Foster capped off with a two yard plunge. Mark Girvin kicked the extra point to win the game.

Hayti tried a field goal from the four yard line with five minutes left in the game that failed.

Halfback Robert Thompson rushed for 155 yard on 17 carried and Parker rushed for 10 yards on the ground this season.

Hayti had a total of 274 yards rushing and Randy Gardner completed four of seven passes for a total of 57 yards.

Portageville ended the regular season as co-champs in the southern division with Dexter.

Dexter Claims Title

DEXTER – Daily Standard 1970 football coach of the year, Clyde Vaughn, capped a somewhat disappointing season with a 6-0 victory over rival Malden and claimed a share of the Southern Division league crown with Portageville.

A third quarter pass play from David Mathis to Mike Ward, covering five yards, was all the scoring in the game.

DHS won the statistical game, rushing for 191 yards and passing for an additional 15 on two completions in 11 passes. Malden was 144 yards rushing and 30 through the air on five of 12 passes.

New York was the first state in the Union to officially proclaim Thanksgiving Day as a holiday, in 1830.

Reindeer Open With Victory

CLARKTON -- The Clarkton Reindeer started their season off in a fine fashion, beating Cooter 66-46 Friday night. Clarkton was 1-20 last season, beating Cooter in overtime for their only victory. Last night, buoyed by a large crowd and rebounding and shooting of the duo of Phil DeLong and Johnny McGee, the Reindeer handed Cooter their second loss of the young season. In the game McGee led all scorers with 20 points, DeLong added 19. McGee also led all rebounders with 13. DeLong had 11.

Clarkton jumped to an early lead in the first period, 16-6. Cooter finally began scoring in the second quarter, but in doing so had to loosen their play on defense and were outscored 18-12 by the Reindeer. Halftime score was 34-18 Clarkton. The second half was much closer, but by then it was too late for Cooter to make any kind of run at the Reindeer. Cooter scored 14 in the third period to 13 for Clarkton and the score was 47-32 going into the final eight minutes. However, the Clarkton offense untracted itself and started moving away once again to make the final score 66-46, Clarkton.

The Reindeer completed a sweep of the night's action with a 45-7 victory over Cooter in the "B" game. That's not a misprint, Cooter was held to just 7 points in the entire game. Hayes led Clarkton scoring in the contest with 9 points.

Lions Roar Loud In Season Opener

SENATH -- Coach Jim Isbell's Lions roared off to a wild start in the 1971-72 basketball season with a convincing 104-59 win over Holcomb Friday night.

The Lions have four starters back from last years squad and look very impressive.

All conference forward Barry Harris had 31 points to lead the onslaught. 6-foot-4 junior Herman Brown had 18 points.

High man for Holcomb was Louis Sims with 13.

Holcomb stayed close in the first period as Senath-H'vile took a 28-21 point lead. The Lions roared out in front in the second quarter scoring 33 points to Holcomb's 14.

Holcomb could never get back on the right track as they could only score eight in the third period to the Lions 27. Each team hit 16 in the last period.

Senath-Hornersville took the junior varsity game 57-40 as Randy Harris hit 20 for the winners and Waggoner had 17 for Holcomb.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach, University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

As the second half of the Tulsa game begins, you, the Louisville quarterback, find the Golden Hurricane tackles are playing two feet off the scrimmage line. Scouting reports have indicated that, in this lineup, Tulsa will often stunt, with an end charging inside and a tackle looping behind him to the outside. What play should you call:

1. Off tackle slant?
2. Pitchout around end?
3. Reverse?
4. Quarterback sneak?

Answer

No. 4. Quarterback sneak hits quickly before end can get to play. Tackle takes himself out. Blockers get more momentun with defensive tackles off scrimmage line. Stunting could hurt slant, pitchout and reverse unless offense picks up blocks.

Bengals Claim North Title

PERRYVILLE -- Cape Girardeau Central high school claimed its third straight Northern Division football championship and added to its hopes of a state class 4-A playoff berth Friday night with a 10-6 decision over a pesky Perryville Pirate squad.

Coach Terry Smith's PHS playoff hopes were dimmed somewhat with the defeat, which was the Pirates first of the season to go along with eight wins and a tie.

Perryville's hopes of a victory ended with them on the five yard line of the Bengals.

Cape scored in the first quarter when Brad Shermar cracked over from five yards out to cape an 82 yard drive the first time the Bengals had the ball. Mike Lee's extra point kick was good and the Tigers were on their way to a 9-1 season record.

The Bengals made it 10-0 with 6:20 left tin the game when Lee split the uprights with a 22 yard field goal.

Perryville charged back moments later when Larry Blanford slipped in from one yard out to cap an 80 yard drive highlighted by a 64-yard offensive run by Mark Gotto.

Only fifteen yards separated the the teams statistically. Cape rushed for 249 yards and passed for nine while the Pirates grounded out 212 yards on the ground and 31 through the air. The Bengals held a 12-11 edge in first downs.

Both teams await word of a possible playoff berth and the naming of an opponent for next week's first of two playoff battles.

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start.

God is hope. God is now.

A message for believer and non-believer alike.
Your reader lives in a world of puzzling and often dispiriting contrasts. Headlines flagellate him with news of war, poverty, pollution, corruption, disease, dope and crime.
If he is fortunate, he may counter these horrors by a perception of quiet family joys and occasional personal achievement.
We would stimulate him to ask "Why?" to these cruel contrasts in his life. We humbly suggest that to his "Why?", God is the place to start.
Whatever the religious impact, we hope you will agree that to ask the right questions is the beginning of knowledge.

We need your help to stimulate your reader to that interior reflection from which good action flows.

Man Meets P51—Again

George Valentine of Ashland, Ohio, is obviously a very happy man. Reason: Seeing again after 26 years a P51 fighter such as he flew on 22 missions over Nazi-occupied Europe during World War II. It wasn't his exact plane, but close enough to bring a rush of nostalgia. Valentine, now with the staff of Ashland College, was invited to get the feel of it again by the owner, an Air National Guard member. Bottom right, Valentine in the cockpit and, left, with his own P51 26 years ago.

TALENT IN ACTION,

impressive from the audience, can be even more so from an orchestra-eye view. Robert Shaw, of the world-famous Chorale and the Atlanta Symphony, is alternately intense, calm, quietly forceful and, finally, exhausted but fulfilled in conducting Judith Mendenhall, lower right, of Edina, Minn., and other students at Kent (Ohio) State University's Blossom Festival School in Hayden's "Creation."

A Compact Oxford Dictionary with Magnifier

THE COMPACT EDITION OF THE OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY. Oxford University Press. Two Volumes. $75.

This publication of the Oxford English Dictionary, the most prestigious in the English language and probably in the world, applies to a classic work the most innovative step in multivolume printing since Oxford itself developed the thin India-type paper some 100 years ago. And the result of this new method, which reduces the print of the original micrographically to a fourth of the original type size, is even more effective.

In a standard edition, the dictionary, which began publication in 1884, now extends to 13 volumes costing $300.

The new set, which a sharp eye can almost read, comes with a special magnifying glass grooved to slide along the edge of the binding during perusal. However, any good magnifying glass of reasonable size to which the reader is accustomed to using will serve.

Inconvenient? Unquestionably, in comparison with picking up a standard-size-type edition and reading it at leisure. Yet how many of us can afford to spend $300 for a dictionary in the home or find space conveniently to shelve it? Even big libraries are finding their space shrinking to the point that annexes are required for annexes to house the exploding volumes of reference works.

In a remarkable publisher's note, the Oxford Press expresses its indebtedness to the veteran publisher Albert Boni of Readex Microprint Corp., "whose compact editions of the British Museum Catalogue and other reference works pioneered this method of publication." Boni has been a distinguished American publisher for more than a generation; books carrying the imprint of his earlier house, Boni & Liveright, are now collectors' items.

Most of us who have been through high school and college are familiar with the concept of the Oxford dictionary. It traces, with examples, the changes in meaning which words constituting the English language have undergone from the beginning. There is a teasing thought as to whether Darwin's concept of evolution, still in its first blush when the dictionary was conceived well over a century ago, had any subconscious part in this conception.

What's The Law?

Employee Illness Not Fault Of Boss

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Larry's stomach was an infernal organ. He had ulcers that were so bad that it became extremely hazardous, according to his doctor, for him to even perform his usual work. Consequently, he appealed to his hard-hearted employer to lessen his tasks but his employer was a severe taskmaster and refused to do so.

The result? Larry passed out on the job and nearly kicked the bucket. Luckily, he missed it and, upon recovering, he sued his boss for damages for having worked him too hard.

"The man's an idiot," responded Larry's employer. "He can't sue me. If he was too sick to work, he should have quit his job. After all, I operate a factory, not a sanitarium."

"I couldn't afford to quit," was Larry's answer, " and he knew it. That's why he refused to lighten my work load. The fact is, he had me boxed in and I'm just fortunate that an undertaker didn't get to box me in also."

jI

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Larry's employer liable for being too severe a taskmaster under the circumstances?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an employee cannot hold an employer responsible for the consequences of his continuing to perform his regular duties contrary to his doctor's advice; that it's not an employer's problem if an employee has to worik to earn a living.

Sesquicentennial Issue
1821-1971

THE ADMISSION OF MISSOURI

By David D. March

One hundred fifty years ago, August 10, 1821, President James Monroe proclaimed that the admission of Missouri to the Union was complete. The proclamation was both issued and received with sighs of relief, for it had been preceded by a protracted quarrel so deeply divisive and at times so violent that the aged Thomas Jefferson was moved sadly to express his fear that the sacrifices of the men of 1776 were to be "thrown away by the unwise and unworthy passions of their sons ..." He had seen in the Missouri controversy the "knell of the Union."

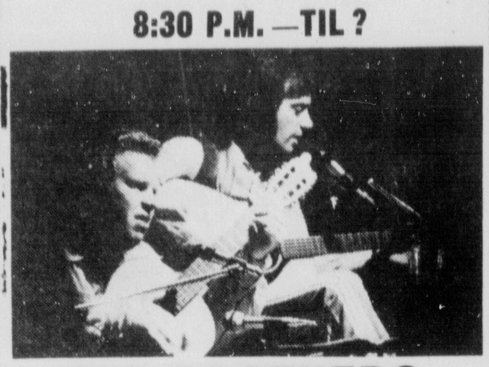

It was on December 18, 1818, a little more than a month after the short session of the Fifteenth Congress had convened, that Henry Clay, of Kentucky, Speaker of the House of Representatives, laid before that body a memorial from the territorial legislature of Missouri praying for statehood. The memorial stated that the population of the territory was "little short of one hundred thousand souls," delineated proposed boundaries for the state, and expressed confidence that the Congress would act "from the spirit of a generous and enlightened policy" to give the people all the rights and privileges of citizens of the United States, to which they were justly entitled. Clay referred this petition, along with other pertinent documents, to a select committee.

Action pickd up when, on February 13, 1819, John Scott, of Ste. Genevieve,delegate from the Missouri Territory, sucessfully moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole to perfect bills which would authorize the people in the territories of Alabama and Missouri to form state governments. Almost immediately Representative James Tallmadge, Jr., from Poughkeepsie, New York, proposed an amendement to the Missouri bill which contained two clauses: (1) that "the further introduction of salvery or involuntary servitude be prohibited ..." and (2) that "all children of slaves, born within the said state, after the admission thereof into the Union, shall be free, but may be held to service until the age of twenty-five years."

The Committee of the Whole, after a short but intensive debate, approved the amendment by a vote of 79 to 67. Then the House itself approved the first clause 87 to 76, and the second by a very close vote of 82 to 78. The division on each was sectional, with Southerners almost unanimously against both clauses. They were joined by only ten congressmen from the free states in opposition to the first clause and by fourteen in their fight against the second. The Missouri bill, as amended, was ordered engrossed, 97 to 56, with eight Southerners voting in the affirmative and only six Northerners voting with the minority.

First Bridge Contract Nearly Completed

CARUTHERSVILLE — Caruthersville residents have long dreamed of a bridge across the Mississippi River located near this community, and today this dream is slowly but surely becoming a reality as 66 per cent of the first contract is now complete.

Work on the new Caruthersville Bridge began with the construction of a gravel road through swampy, low bayou country across the levee near the river in early June, 1969. Actual bridge construction had already begun on the Tennessee bank of the mighty Mississippi, but on the Missouri side workers were kept busy building a road, cutting through wooded areas so that heavy equipment, supplies, and bridge materials could move back and forth to the bridge site.

Early work on road construction was hampered by high water and bad weather conditions as usual. Thousands of yards of fill had to be used to build the road which, due to high water, was in almost constant need of repair.

Not long after the road was made passable, local residents began to see signs of bridge work.

Massman - Juhnson, a Kansas City Construction Company, is working on the first contract which is the substructure contract of the main river spans: piers 14 through 26. The cost of this contract is approximately $7,700,000.00.

Total cost of the Caruthersville Bridge has been estimated at approximately $26,000,000.00, and the bridge is expected to be completed in late 1974 or early 1975.

The substructure contract, according to the Missouri State Highway Department's Resident Engineer W. A. Schenke, is the first of several contracts to be awarded, leading to the final completion of the 7,098 foot structure. Encompassed within this first contract is the construction of seven piers and six bents which comprise the supports for the main spans of the huge bridge.

In March, 1971, this contract was about 30 percent complete. Today, according to the resident engineer, the first contract is about 66 percent complete.

Asked if this progress is good or bad, Schenke replied, "All I can say is that we would like to have been a little futher along."

Construction of a pier requires much more work than the eyes of a river bank spectator can see. Each pier requires form 91 to 125 piles averaging 90 feet in length. After these piles are driven inside a cofferdam, a twenty foot thick course of seal concrete is placed through the water which allows the cofferdam to be dewatered and the pier built in the dry. The top of the seal concrete is approximately 35 feet below the average river level gauge reading of 13.2.

Piers 19, 20, and 21 are supported by caissons built on islands of sand constructed by the contractor and are lowered to their final position approximately 130 feet below the river by dredging out the sand below the pier concrete. This dredging is performed through 13 foot diameter holes in the pier base.

A breakdown of the estimated cost of the present contract indicates that of the total of $7,764,193.00, $6,104,741.00, or 80 percent is to provide for the construction of items which will be below the average elevation of the river.

The resident engineer stated that winter weather would probably not slow down progress this year.

Massman - Johnson have approximately 75 construction workers working on the bridge at the present time.

Recently the Highway Department announced that a November 24 bid call would include work on 109.8 miles of highways in the area. It was reported that on I—155 in Pemiscot County, a 1.2 mile grading project will be let for the Mississippi river bridge approach south of Caruthersville.

Schenke told The Democrat - Argus Tuesday that work would be done from the bridge to the levee. The road will be built up to a height of approximately 20 feet with thousands of tons of fill. Some local residents felt that, due to periodic high water, the section of I-155 from the bridge to the levee would be constructed above land.

After contract one is completed, about five other contracts will follow before pemiscot County residents will get to cross the river on the new Caruthersville Bridge.

School Bus, Truck Collide

CHARLESTON — Several children were shaken up, but no injuries were reported when a St. Henry's School bus collided with a farm truck on County Road O five miles north of Charleston Tuesday about 3:20 p.m.

The Highway Patrol said the accident took place about one-half mile east of county Road N.

Martin Carlisle, the bus driver, said a truck owned by Jim Thurmond and driven by a farmhand stopped suddenly in the road ahead of the bus and the bus struck the truck in the rear.

Trooper Norris Grissom said the truck driver, John Franklin Day, 59, of Santa Maria, Calif., stopped his truck because he saw his employer, Mr. Thurmond, coming toward him in another truck. The bus driver was unable to stop in time to avoid the collision.

No summons was issued, Trooper Grissom said.

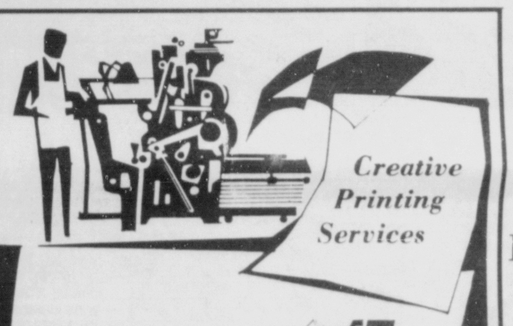

Two Charleston Residents Hurt

CHARLESTON — Two Charleston residents sustained face cuts and possible back injuries in a one-car accident three miles southwest of Charleston Tuesday.

At 5:45 p.m. on a blacktop road, a 1966 Chevrolet traveling south, driven by Orvin Rapert, 70, of Charleston, did not stop at an unmarked intersection, the highway patrol said, and hit a dirt embankment.

The driver and a passenger, Lelia Rapert, 60, of Charleston, were taken to Missouri Delta community hospital in Sikeston.

Egypt Asks UN Debate On Middle East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt has formally asked a U.N. General Assembly debate on the Middle East not later than Dec. 1, and demanded either a clear-cut Israeli commitment to withdraw from occupied Arab territory or the imposition of punitive measures against the Jewish state, an authoritative Cairo newspaper said today.

In Jerusalem, Deputy Premier Yigal Allon predicted that if another Middle East war erupted it would lead nowhere, and called on Egypt to begin negotiations to find a political solution to the crisis.

Mariner 9 Near Trip End

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Its quarter-billion -mile journey nearing an end, Mariner 9 is plunging toward a tiny "window" in the sky of Mars from which a burst of its engine is to drop the spacecraft into an orbit about the planet.

If the 15-minute firing of the retrorocket scheduled for 7:17 p.m. today is successful, Mariner 9 will become the first spacecraft to orbit another planet, apparently beating two Russian probes to Mars.

SUPPORTS HUNTING

WASHINGTON (AP) Concerned over increasing anti-hunting sentiment, The Wildlife Society has gone on record in support of hunting in the United States.

"Sport hunting is regulated to maintain healthy balances in wildlife populations," says executive director Fred G. Evenden.

Council To Revise Insurance Law

MALDEN — The city council indicated Monday night that it will revise the ordinance governing hospitalization insurance for city employees and officers of the city. Mayor Sparrel Davis appointed a three - man committee, composed of Jame Corder, Bill Smithson and Mart Bostic, to study the ordinance and to make recommendations to the Council at their next meeting.

The Mayor's action came at the prodding of Councilman Phil Santie. Santie asked City Attorney Gordon Fritz whether or not elected city officials were eligible for the city - paid hospitalization insurance. Fritz said that in his opinion under the present ordinance that they are. However, he said that he didn't think that appointed officers were.

Several members of the Council said that this should be changed. Mayor Davis immediately named a committee to study the ordinance and make recommendations. He then passed on to other business.

The hospitalization insurance program is a liberal and costly one to the city. It includes Blue Cross, Blue Major, Blue Shield and other benefits. The cost per individual is $51.99 per quarter and for an individual with family coverage it is $138.12 per quarter. Under provisions of the existing ordinance the City of Malden must pay at least 50 percent and up to 100 percent of the individual's cost. The City is not to pay any of the dependents' portion. The cost per quarter is nearly $4,000.

Elected officials presently covered under the program are Mayor Davis, Chief of Police D. W. McMillian, Police Judge Ralph Stropp, City Collector Joann McCurter and Councilman Mart Bostic. Bostic says that he pays both his individual and family coverage. Stropp has only individual coverage. The others have both.

None of the other elected or appointed officials are listed.

In other business, John Howell appeared before the council to discuss the City's policy in regard to sending the fire truck on out of town calls.

Howell, one of the owners of Stokes Brothers Gin Company, said that a trash pile of cotton hulls caught fire on land just outside the southwest city limits of Malden. He said that he called the fire department and that the fire truck driver, Harley Ratliff, told him it would be a $25 fee. He agreed to the fee, but then Ratliff said he didn't have permission to take the fire truck out of town. Howell said that he finally gave up and took his own crew of men out to control the fire as it threatened the building housing the KTCB radio transmitter.

Howell said that he had just about recovered from being angry Friday morning when he saw the fire truck at a grass fire near the Chez Paree Club beyond the north city limits. Howell said that he wanted to know the City's policy.

Mayor Davis said that he and Fire chief J. D. Wagster had already apologized to Mr. Howell and to Dick Wiethan. He said that he couldn't understand why Ratliff didn't respond to the fire call.

The Council said that their policy has always been to send the fire truck on out of town calls within a reasonable distance and that they would continue to do so.

Lou Withrow of Kansas City representing the National Weather Service appeared before the Council to seek approval to install weather information data equipment at the sewage disposal plant and to have city employees take daily readings. He said that the information is extremely valuable — especially to farmers in the area. Withrow said that Arthur McGill has been performing this service for years, but due to illness is no longer able. The Council gave its approval.

Mayor Davis reported to the Council that the Bootheel Law Enforcement Assistance Council has approved a grant of $660 to apply toward the purchase of new police uniforms for the City of Malden. He said that this represents 75 percent of the cost and that the other 25 percent will be paid for by individual members of the police force.

The matter of whether or not the Malden Compress should be taken into the city limits along with other proposed areas was discussed, but no action taken. City Attorney Gordon Fritz said that Attorney Flake McHaney wants to appear before the Council on behalf of the Compress. Fritz says that owners of the Compress claim that they have an agreement with the City of Malden made back in the thirties that they would never be taken into the city limits. The matter was more or less tabled.

A discussion was held in reference to taxing so called farm land within the city limits. It was brought out that a City Council has no authority to exempt any property from taxes. No action was taken.

Lloyd Garris was employed as a park maintenance man with his first year.s salary to be paid by the federal government.

Approval was given to Malden Furniture company to remove curbing along their store on West Main Street and blacktop the area for parking. However, the owners are to install either curbing or concrete blocks to prevent automobiles from parking on the sidewalk.

The Council approved a resolution granting the Board of Public Works permission to enter into an agreement with the federal government for the replacement of mercury seals with mechanical seals at the sewage disposal plant located on the Industrial Park. The cost is to be $13,000 on a 50-50 basis. The federal grant is being made under the Water Pollution Control Act.

A discussion was held in reference to parking too near corners on certain streets. The Council delayed any action until they could study the problem.

Condition of Dodson Better

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Donald L. Dodson, 29, of Sikeston, is now listed in fair condition at Southeast Missouri hospital from injuries sustained in a one-car mishap south of Cape Girardeau on Interstate 55 Thursday night.

Dodson was taken to the hospital Thursday with chest, internal, and head injuries. He was first listed in critical condition.

Change In Veterans Day Protested

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Resolutions protesting the change in the date of Veterans Day from Nov. 11 to Oct. 25 were adopted by elements of two veterans organizations in Missouri Thursday—the anniversary of the World War I armistice.

The 4th and 5th Districts of the Organized veterans of World War I adopted a resolution and another was approved by the American Legion 0th District in a meeting at University City.

Representatives of both groups said changing the date of the observance also changes the meaning of the day.

"Nothing happened on Oct. 25 except that it was designated as Veterans Day, whereas Nov. 11 has been observed for more than 50 years as the anniversary of the end of World War I," said Ernest G. Keefer of Roc Hill, deputy national chief of staff of the World War I veterans.

A. W. Scheetz, commander of District 11, criticized the action making Veterans Day part of a three-day weekend.

"Veterans Day isn't a holiday on which you're supposed to go out and enjoy yourself. It's a solemn occasion," he said.

Bert Casselman of Kansas City, Missouri Legion commander, had a similar comment.

"This is a day when we honor veterans. It lacks meaning when you set it on a holiday when people take off on a weekend for personal enjoyment," he said.

"It's a traditional thing," said Milton Hass of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7980. "The older veterans feel what little they have left is being taken away from them.

"Also," he added, "we don't feel we should be making any moore three-day weekends. Too many people are being killed on the highways on these flying weekend trips."
